

Person On Street Fuzzy On History

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

As the nation enters its 200th year, how about a quiz on early American history?

Or are you like the man at the bus stop who turned his head aside, held up his hands defensively and said "oh-ho-ho no. Don't get me on American history."

That's one thing that happened when the Star put together a street-corner history quiz. The other thing was that not many people had the right answers.

The first day people at O Street bus stops were asked four questions about the country, with a question about the state thrown in.

The questions were too tough, obviously. The next day people at the stops were asked four easy ones. The number of correct answers improved, but were nowhere close to 100%.

Here are the first four questions, if you want to test your memory:

1. How long was the Revolutionary War?

2. In what year was George Washington inaugurated as the nation's first president?

3. You've heard of the "shot heard 'round the world." At what location was it fired?

4. Which side won the Battle of Bunker Hill?

5. Can you name the state's (a) motto (b) flower (c) bird (d) tree?

How did you do? On O Street, none of the 10 persons quizzed knew the Revolutionary War lasted for eight years from the first fighting at Lexington and Concord until the signing of the peace treaty.

Only one person knew that George Washington was inaugurated as the nation's first president in 1789. Only one person knew that the "shot heard 'round the world" was fired at Concord, Mass. Three persons correctly said that British won the Battle of Bunker Hill.

No one knew that the state motto is "Equality Before the Law." Two people knew the state bird is the western meadowlark. One person knew goldenrod is the state flower and one knew the state tree is the cottonwood.

Some of the wrong answers were interesting. A 62-year-old woman never heard of "the shot heard 'round the world." A 14-year-old thought George Washington was inaugurated in 1817. A 27-year-old thought the state motto was "where the West begins."

The "easy" questions used the second day were:

1. Who said "I regret that I have but one life to give for my country?"

2. Who said "Give me liberty or give me death?"

3. What are the year, month and date of the signing of the Declaration of Independence?

4. What is the name of the national anthem?

5. How many colonies were there in 1776?

Seven of the 10 people who took the quiz didn't know Nathan Hale was the patriot who said, "I regret that I have but one life to give for my country."

A 52-year-old woman thought the quote was John Paul Jones. A 14-year-old thought the words came from the mouth of George Washington.

Four people thought the spokesman was Patrick Henry. But he was the patriot who said "Give me liberty or give me death," and his name was the answer to the second question.

Five of 10 people did not know that the Declaration of Independence was signed on July 4, 1776 (according to most historians).

One person knew it was signed in 1776, but didn't know the month or day. Another answered "1776, July 4."

No wait. It couldn't have been the fourth. "I've been out of school a long time." Three people wouldn't hazard an answer to that question.

Football game precludes notwithstanding, four out of 10 people did not know that the country's national anthem is "The Star Spangled Banner."

"I know the words. I can't think of the name," said a 29-year-old homemaker. Others thought the anthem was "My Country 'Tis of Thee" and "America."

Only one person did not know that there were 13 colonies in 1776. Only a 52-year-old homemaker was wrong. She said 11.

The quiz produced one startling response. A 14-year-old offered the opinion that "The U.S. is going to fall one of these days anyhow. People don't care about it anymore."

Signing Spree Ends Year

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford has closed out the year by signing more than a dozen bills, including a five-year $634-million funding authorization for the Public Broadcasting Corp. and an anti-discrimination housing mortgage credit disclosure act.

He also chalked up another veto — his 43rd — and issued a proclamation ending U.S. retaliatory restrictions on Canadian meat imports.

Ford took the actions on New Year's Eve and they were announced Thursday at the White House.

The veto involved a bill that would have given the secretary of treasury membership on the National Security Council. Ford said that was unnecessary and undesirable because there were adequate arrangements for getting advice from the treasury secretary.

Among the bills signed by Ford was a measure to increase the monthly premium for Medicare coverage from $6.70 to $7.20, effective July 1. The change will affect more than 20 million Medicare recipients enrolled in the voluntary coverage that pays doctors' bills.

Also signed was the $6.4-billion authorization for the new Energy and Research Development Administration and a measure to give emergency relief to small business firms caught in the economic squeeze of rising costs and fixed-price federal contract commitments.

Ford hailed the public broadcasting bill as a milestone measure, even though he said it was not perfect.

It provides for longer-term funding, which Ford said was long sought "as a means of insulating this important medium of expression from the possibility of undue governmental control."

The PBC bill also included a matching formula to peg federal funding to amounts raised from private contributions. And it requires distribution of specified public broadcasting funds to local stations.

Ford expressed disappointment that while the bill called for a five-year authorization of funds it did not include a corresponding five-year appropriation the administration requested. He also said Congress exceeded his proposed spending ceiling of $452.5 million by $181.5 million at a time of "severe strain on the federal budget."

The mortgage bill requires disclosure of information from financial institutions with over $10 million in assets and operating in large urban areas. It is intended to detect any discriminatory practices in the housing credit field.

Ford said he strongly supported the objective of the bill, but he expressed concern that it might impose burdensome and costly record-keeping and paperwork.

Ford's proclamation, effective Jan. 1, lifted import limitations on meat coming into the United States from Canada. They had been in effect since Nov. 16, 1974, in retaliation for import limits set by Canada.

Ford said they were removed because "Canada has now lifted those unjustifiable restrictions on meat imports from the United States."

Guardsmen Fire On Rushing Mob

OPORTO, Portugal (AP) — National guardsmen opened fire Thursday night on a crowd that military officials said was trying to storm a prison holding rebel officers. Three persons were reported killed and six suffered critical injuries.

The officials said the 4-year-old daughter of a prisoner was among the critically wounded in the shooting at the gates of Custos prison, where suspects in an uprising by ultraleftist military elements are being held.

The incident occurred as some 3,000 family, friends and supporters of officers suspected of involvement in the abortive Nov. 25 rebellion shouted and sang for the release of the prisoners.

It was the bloodiest clash in the civil disturbances that have rocked Portugal over the past 20 months since the overthrow of the old rightist regime.

At about 7 p.m. the gates of the prison swung open to allow an official car to leave. Officials said members of the crowd tried to rush in through the open portals.

National guardsmen fired into the air at first, the officials said, and some of the demonstrators began throwing stones at the guards.

Military officers said someone in the crowd began shooting at the guardsmen with a pistol and the guardsmen then shot into the crowd.

One of the dead men was identified as Gunther Bruns, 22, of Hamburg, West Germany. The other two victims were Portuguese.

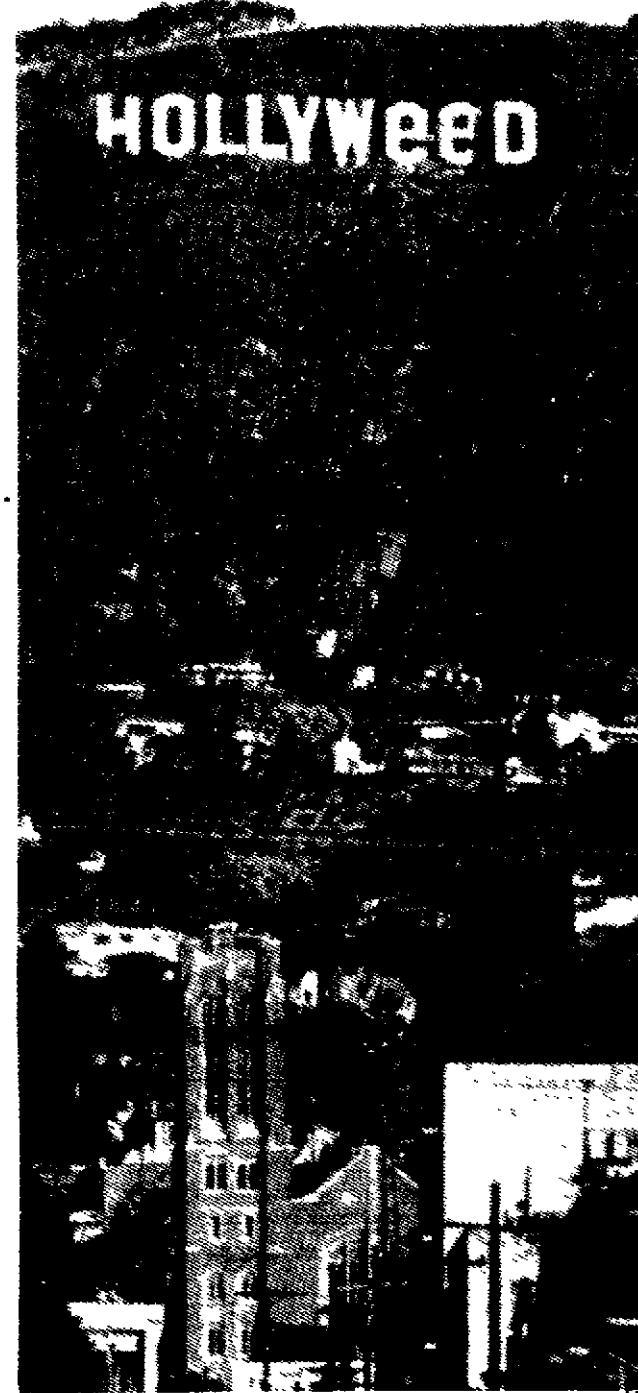

There was no immediate explanation for Bruns' presence in the crowd.

Following the shooting, military officials said, there was a mutiny inside the prison where some 70 suspects have been held for more than a month.

It took several hours for guards to restore order inside and a count of prisoners was ordered amid reports there might have been an escape attempt.

The injured were treated at Sao Joao hospital in this northern city, which is a stronghold of comparatively conservative sentiment in Portugal's political struggle.

In Lisbon, a similar demonstration took place outside Caxias prison, where other coup plot suspects were being held. Elite commands scattered the crowd by driving armored cars into its midst and firing automatic weapons.

FAMED SIGN ... got a new look.

Pranksters Celebrate New Law

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The famous "Hollywood" sign in the hills overlooking the movie city was altered Thursday to "Hollyweed" by persons who said it was meant to note the state's new marijuana possession law.

The new law went into effect at midnight, reducing the penalty for possession of an ounce or less of marijuana to a traffic ticket-like citation and a maximum fine of $100.

The sign was altered by several young men who said they used muslin sheets to create the two "e's."

"We hung two sheets on each 'O' in the word Hollywood, using nylon cord," a caller told The Associated Press. "The sign is intact and there was no damage. It took us from midnight until about 4 a.m."

The caller said, "Things are different now and we thought it would be a good way to mark the day."

Police said the sign would be changed back to read "Hollywood."

Midnight Plus 4 Seconds Hard To Beat

COLUMBUS (UPI) — Brenda Lynne Hess of Barborton came into the world at four seconds after midnight New Year's Day and her mother believes she's very special because she may be the country's first bicentennial baby.

"I didn't realize what it meant at first," said Vicky Hess, 24, from her Barborton Citizens' Hospital bed.

"I didn't even think about her being the first baby of the bicentennial year. She's very special. After all, this is the 200th year of the country and that makes her the first bicentennial baby."

Brenda Lynne is the second girl in the Herbert Hess family. She weighed 6 pounds 4 1/2 ounces.

"She was a day early," Mrs. Hess said. "I think she's the first one born in the Akron area. But she came just as any mother would expect. My husband is really excited. He was up here already this morning holding her. He was allowed to hold her when she came up for feeding."

Mrs. Hess knew the exact time her baby arrived.

"Well, it was midnight and the doctor said start counting and we started counting seconds and she was born four seconds after midnight," she said.

Eleanor, her 4-year-old, was pleased she was getting a little sister.

"Well, she said she wanted a baby brother, but I think that's because she knew we wanted a boy," Mrs. Hess said. "But when my husband went home last night and told her she had a baby sister, she grabbed him by the neck and started hugging him. I think she always wanted a little girl."

"Eleanor's been practicing for the new baby," the new mother said. "She got a doll for Christmas and she puts it on her shoulder and pats it on the back."

Her new baby is going to be brought up just like Eleanor was treated.

"You have to love your children as much as you love anything else," Mrs. Hess said. "You have to bring them up to do right."

Board Would Enforce Reform Law

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last of five articles in a series by The Star's political writer.)

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

A new five-member Fair Political Practices Commission would enforce the Nebraska Political Reform Act of 1976.

It would be empowered to investigate alleged violations of the law and, when necessary, prosecute alleged violators.

Commission action would be subject to judicial review.

Members of the commission would be appointed by the governor and be subject to legislative confirmation. No more than three commissioners could be members of the same political party.

The governor's appointments would be made from separate lists of nominees submitted by the Legislature, the attorney general, the Democratic state chairman and the Republican state chairman.

One Term Only

Commissioners could serve no more than one five-year term. They would be required to disclose their financial interests in the same manner as public officeholders and candidates.

While a member of the commission, none could hold or campaign for public office, hold office in a political party, campaign for or contribute to any candidate, act as a lobbyist or attempt in any other way to influence state governmental decisions outside the realm of his or her official duties.

Commissioners would be paid at a minimum rate of $40 per half-day and actual expenses.

Staff Provided For

The commission would have a staff composed of an executive director, general counsel, chief auditor, two auditor-investigators and other employees.

Its estimated annual budget, $225,000.

The commission would make random field investigations and audits of campaign reports and lobbyist reports.

Upon request, it could issue advisory opinions on the requirements of the new law as it relates to a person or governmental body seeking such advice.

Investigations of alleged violations would be confidential unless the accused person requested that the proceedings be public.

Investigation Would End

If a preliminary investigation failed to "indicate probable cause for belief that this enactment has been violated," the commission would terminate its investigation.

But if a majority of the members of the commission found probable cause to believe there was a violation, the investigation would continue in closed session — unless the accused person requested an open session.

After those proceedings were completed, the commission would determine by a majority vote whether to hold the person civilly liable, initiate criminal prosecution, do both, or do neither.

If the commission determined there was no violation, the records would remain confidential — unless the accused person requested that they be made public.

Public Record

If the commission determined there was a violation, the records would be made public.

Upon a finding of civil liability, the commission could issue a cease and desist order or levy a civil penalty of not more than $1,000 for each violation.

The attorney general and the county attorney would have concurrent jurisdiction with the commission to enforce (as prosecutors) criminal provisions of the enactment.

Criminal penalties would be imposed by judges only after conviction in the courts, and could range up to three years imprisonment and a $10,000 fine for individuals, or up to a $25,000 fine for organizations.

Individuals could be declared ineligible as candidates for public office for up to six years following a second felony conviction under the act.

Barred From Lobbying

Persons could be barred from lobbying for up to 10 years following two felony violations of the lobbying provisions of the law.

A five-year statute of limitations would prevail. Any person who believed the commission had failed to prosecute a violation could file suit of his own, either against the commission (to compel it to act) or against the accused candidate, lobbyist or public official.

But if the court found such action against an individual was brought without reasonable cause, the accused could be ordered to pay the defendant's court costs and attorney fees.

If voters approved the initiative proposal next year, the first commission members would be appointed by March 14, 1977.

Deep Snow Blankets West But Southeast May Escape

By MAXINE WOLF
Star Staff Writer

Western Nebraska's three-day winter storm piled up to two feet of snow on the ground at Chadron and Crawford by late Thursday, while pushing eastward into the southwestern, central and northeastern parts of the state.

Snow was falling north and west of a line from near Norfolk to Grand Island to south of North Platte late New Year's Day.

Officials credited the holiday and football games on television for keeping the bulk of storm area residents at home, thus eliminating big traffic tieups.

Except for two persons reported missing in the Scottsbluff ranch area, no major emergencies apparently existed in the Panhandle.

Search Planned

Civil Defense officers at Scottsbluff said the missing pair hadn't been heard from since they left a ranch 19 miles north of Scottsbluff to go five miles south. A search is expected to get under way Friday.

Early Thursday the heavy snow, part of a slow-moving storm system pushing through the plains, had been expected to move into southeastern Nebraska. But a special weather statement from the National Weather Service late Thursday indicated the southeast would escape with only a small amount of snow.

By Friday morning the main storm threat will have ended over all of Nebraska, the NWS declared.

of blocked highways in northwestern Nebraska. At 2 p.m. Thursday snowplows in the Chadron area were called in due to blowing snow.

The Cherry County sheriff's office at Valentine said snowplows were pulled off the roads there after 4 p.m. due to zero visibility. U.S. 20 was blocked west of Valentine.

From 22 to 24 inches of snow at Crawford kept that Dawes County community at a standstill Thursday. No traffic was able to move there because of blowing and drifting snow.

Drifts from five to six feet deep were a common sight at Hemingford where 13 inches of snow fell.

Highways Closed

Interstate 80 was closed Thursday west of Kimball. Other blocked highways included U.S.

385 north of Sidney, U.S. 83 north and south of North Platte, U.S. 30 west of Ogallala, Highway 70 west of Merna and east of Broken Bow, Highway 71 north of Kimball, Highway 2 and U.S. 385 north of Alliance, and Highway 29 north of Scottsbluff.

Harrison chalked up 15 inches of snow, with 14 inches at Scottsbluff, 12 inches at North Platte, 10 inches at Bassett, 7 inches at Burwell and 6 inches at Valentine, Ashby and Ogallala.

The heaviest snow Thursday was in central Nebraska in an area from Valentine to Ainsworth to North Platte to Mullen and back to Valentine.

Meanwhile, drizzle and freezing rain fell throughout Thursday in parts of eastern Nebraska, leaving highways hazardous with spotted ice.

Person On Street Fuzzy On History

As the nation enters its 200th year, how about a quiz on early American history?

Or are you like the man at the bus stop who turned his head aside, held up his hands defensively and said "oh-ho-ho no. Don't get me on American history."

3. You've heard of the "shot heard 'round the world." At what location was it fired?

4. Which side won the Battle of Bunker Hill?

2. Who said "Give me liberty or give me death?"

3. What are the year, month and date of the signing of the Declaration of Independence?

4. What is the name of the national anthem?

5. How many colonies were there in 1776?

Seven of the 10 people who took the quiz didn't know Nathan Hale was the patriot who said, "I regret that I have but one life to give for my country."

A 52-year-old woman thought the quote was John Paul Jones. A 14-year-old thought the words came from the mouth of George Washington.

Four people thought the spokesman was Patrick Henry. But he was the patriot who said "Give me liberty or give me death," and his name was the answer to the second question.

Five of 10 people did not know that the Declaration of Independence was signed on July 4, 1776 (according to most historians).

One person knew it was signed in 1776, but didn't know the month or day. Another answered "1776, July 4. No wait. It couldn't have been the fourth... I've been out of school a long time." Three people wouldn't hazard an answer to that question.

Football game precludes notwithstanding, four out of 10 people did not know that the country's national anthem is "The Star Spangled Banner."

"I know the words. I can't think of the name," said a 29-year-old homemaker. Others thought the anthem was "My Country 'Tis of Thee" and "America."

Only one person did not know that there were 13 colonies in 1776. Only a 52-year-old homemaker was wrong. She said 11.

The quiz produced one startling response. A 14-year-old offered the opinion that "The U.S. is going to fall one of these days anyhow. People don't care about it anymore."

Signing Spree Ends Year

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford has closed out the year by signing more than a dozen bills, including a five-year $634-million funding authorization for the Public Broadcasting Corp. and an anti-discrimination housing mortgage credit disclosure act.

He also chalked up another veto — his 43rd — and issued a proclamation ending U.S. retaliatory restrictions on Canadian meat imports.

Ford's proclamation, effective Jan. 1, lifted import limitations on meat coming into the United States from Canada. They had been in effect since Nov. 16, 1974, in retaliation for import limits set by Canada.

Ford said they were removed because "Canada has now lifted those unjustifiable restrictions on meat imports from the United States."

Midnight Plus 4 Seconds Hard To Beat

Columbus (UPI) — Brenda Lynne Hess of Barberton came into the world at four seconds after midnight New Year's Day and her mother believes she's very special because she may be the country's first bicentennial baby.

"I didn't realize what it meant at first," said Vicky Hess, 24, from her Barberton Citizens' Hospital bed.

Her new baby is going to be brought up just like Eleanor was treated.

"You have to love your children as much as you love anything else," Mrs. Hess said. "You have to bring them up to do right."

Board Would Enforce Reform Law

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

A new five-member Fair Political Practices Commission would enforce the Nebraska Political Reform Act of 1976.

It would be empowered to investigate alleged violations of the law and, when necessary, prosecute alleged violators.

Commission action would be subject to judicial review.

Members of the commission would be appointed by the governor and be subject to legislative confirmation. No more than three commissioners could be members of the same political party.

The governor's appointments would be made from separate lists of nominees submitted by the Legislature, the attorney general, the Democratic state chairman and the Republican state chairman.

One Term Only

Commissioners could serve no more than one five-year term. They would be required to disclose their financial interests in the same manner as public officeholders and candidates.

While a member of the commission, none could hold or campaign for public office, hold office in a political party, campaign for or contribute to any candidate, act as a lobbyist or attempt in any other way to influence state governmental decisions outside the realm of his or her official duties.

Commissioners would be paid at a minimum rate of $40 per half-day and actual expenses.

Staff Provided For

The commission would have a staff composed of an executive director, general counsel, chief auditor, two auditor-investigators and other employees.

Its estimated annual budget: $225,000.

The commission would make random field investigations and audits of campaign reports and lobbyist reports.

Upon request, it could issue advisory opinions on the requirements of the new law as it relates to a person or governmental body seeking such advice.

Investigation Would End

If a preliminary investigation failed to "indicate probable cause for belief that this enactment has been violated," the commission would terminate its investigation.

But if a majority of the members of the commission found probable cause to believe there was a violation, the investigation would continue in closed session — unless the accused person requested an open session.

After those proceedings were completed, the commission would determine by a majority vote whether to hold the person civilly liable, initiate criminal prosecution, do both, or do neither.

If the commission determined there was no violation, the records would remain confidential — unless the accused person requested that they be made public.

Public Record

If the commission determined there was a violation, the records would be made public.

Upon a finding of civil liability, the commission could issue a cease and desist order or levy a civil penalty of not more than $1,000 for each violation.

The attorney general and the county attorney would have concurrent jurisdiction with the commission to enforce (as prosecutors) criminal provisions of the enactment.

Criminal penalties would be imposed by judges only after conviction in the courts, and could range up to three years imprisonment and a $10,000 fine for individuals, or up to a $25,000 fine for organizations.

Individuals could be declared ineligible as candidates for public office for up to six years following a second felony conviction under the act.

Barred From Lobbying

Persons could be barred from lobbying for up to 10 years following two felony violations of the lobbying provisions of the law.

A five-year statute of limitations would prevail.

Any person who believed the commission had failed to prosecute a violation could file suit of his own, either against the commission (to compel it to act) or against the accused candidate, lobbyist or public official.

But if the court found such action against an individual was brought without reasonable cause, the accuser could be ordered to pay the defendant's court costs and attorney fees.

If voters approved the initiative proposal next year, the first commission members would be appointed by March 10, 1977.

Deep Snow Blankets West But Southeast May Escape

Star Staff Writer

Western Nebraska's three-day winter storm piled up to two feet of snow on the ground at Chadron and Crawford by late Thursday, while pushing eastward into the southwestern, central and northeastern parts of the state.

Snow was falling north and west of a line from near Norfolk to Grand Island to south of North Platte late New Year's Day.

Officials credited the holiday and football games on television for keeping the bulk of storm area residents at home, thus eliminating big traffic tieups.

Except for two persons reported missing in the Scottsbluff ranch area, no major emergencies apparently existed in the Panhandle.

Search Planned

Civil Defense officers at Scottsbluff said the missing pair hadn't been heard from since they left a ranch 19 miles north of Scottsbluff to go five miles south. A search is expected to get under way Friday.

Early Thursday the heavy snow, part of a slow-moving storm system pushing through the plains, had been expected to move into southeastern Nebraska. But a special weather statement from the National Weather Service late Thursday indicated the southeast would escape with only a small amount of snow.

By Friday morning the main storm threat will have ended over all of Nebraska, the NWS declared.

of blocked highways in northwestern Nebraska. At 2 p.m. Thursday, snowplows in the Chadron area were called in due to blowing snow.

The Cherry County sheriff's office at Valentine said snowplows were pulled off the roads there after 4 p.m. due to zero visibility. U.S. 20 was blocked west of Valentine.

From 22 to 24 inches of snow at Crawford kept that Dawes County community at a standstill Thursday. No traffic was able to move there because of blowing and drifting snow.

Drifts from five to six feet deep were a common sight at Hemingford where 13 inches of snow fell.

Highways Closed

Interstate 80 was closed Thursday west of Kimball. Other blocked highways included U.S.

385 north of Sidney, U.S. 83 north and south of North Platte, U.S. 30 west of Ogallala, Highway 70 west of Merna and east of Broken Bow, Highway 71 north of Kimball, Highway 2 and U.S. 385 north of Alliance, and Highway 29 north of Scottsbluff.

Harrison chalked up 15 inches of snow, with 14 inches at Scottsbluff, 12 inches at North Platte, 10 inches at Bassett, 7 inches at Burwell and 6 inches at Valentine, Ashby and Ogallala.

The heaviest snow Thursday was in central Nebraska in an area from Valentine to Ainsworth to North Platte to Mullen and back to Valentine.

U.S. Starts Year With Hangovers, Bowl Games

By The Associated Press

Americans welcomed 1976 and the beginning of the nation's Bicentennial on Thursday — with hangovers, bowl games and a presidential exhortation to inaugurate a new century of liberty and hope.

The Liberty Bell was in the new Liberty Pavilion, an estimated 14 million people watched the Rose Bowl parade and police in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., used tear gas and an armored car to control 5,000 New Year's celebrants.

Sixty-two arrests were made in Fort Lauderdale 110 in Key West, Fla., and 27 in South Milwaukee, Wis., all when crowds of New Year's Eve revelers refused to disperse.

The Mummers Parade a New Year's Day fixture in Philadelphia was called off because of snow, and 100 members of the Sheboygan, Wis., Polar Bear Club took their annual swim in Lake Michigan.

In Greenwood, Ind., a family's four young children died in a Christmas tree fire.

The National Safety Council had predicted that 350 to 400 people would die on the highways during the four day holiday weekend. At least 104 persons had been killed by Thursday afternoon.

For football fanatics there were three bowl games — the Cotton, Rose and Orange bowls spread across 11 hours of network time.

Bicentennial celebrations began with the Charlestown Militia firing a 13-cannon salute Thursday noon as the Grand Union flag was raised over Prospect Hill in Somerville, Mass. The flag, the first to use the 13 red-and-white stripes, was visible to the besieged British garrison in Boston when it was raised 200 years ago.

But not everyone was moved by the bicentennial spirit. The police chief in Columbus, Ohio, ordered city policemen to take American flag patches off their uniforms because they detract from the appearance of uniforms.

President Ford saluted 1976 as a time that inaugurates a new century of liberty and hope.

Let us remember the heritage of our forefathers and ask what we shall leave to the generations to come, the President said in a New Year's address to the nation.

For most Americans, however, there were more mundane concerns on the first day of the year. It cost 13 cents to mail a letter, government experts said food prices will continue to rise 4 or 5 per cent per month and the Harris Poll said 85 per cent of Americans called the economy their biggest problem.

In Rome, Pope Paul VI urged world leaders to promote human and social progress. Peace is possible, it is a duty, it is necessary, he told 12,000 people in St. Peter's Basilica.

But Moslem and Christian armies traded machine gun fire in Beirut New Year's Day and three people died when bombs exploded in three pubs in Northern Ireland.

Eighty-two persons died when a jet liner crashed in Saudi Arabia and 15 persons, mostly young, welcoming the New Year were killed in a stampede when fire broke out in a Belgium cafe.

Police said 20,000 revelers had ignored a cold rain to welcome in 1976 in New York's Times Square. Across town, Guy Lombardo conducted the Royal Canadians through the umpteenth playing of 'Auld Lang Syne' at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel.

There were 20,000 persons in Cleveland's Public Square when the new year began and about the same number were on hand as 12 hard-hat workmen pushed the 2,080-pound Liberty Bell to the new Liberty Pavilion in Philadelphia.

Fireworks crackled and a fife and drum corps played 'Yankee Doodle Dandy' as the bell made the 100-yard journey from Independence Hall, which planners said would be too small to accommodate Bicentennial-year visitors.

The New Year brought tragedy for some Americans. At least 28 persons died in fires around the country. Three children died when flames swept a rented chalet at the Bryce Mountain ski resort in Virginia where their family was spending the holiday weekend.

A 16-year-old girl babysitting for two small children New Year's Eve in Bedford Township, Mich., was abducted and slain, police said. Two-year-old Kacy Coody was killed when he toppled an old gravestone during a visit with his parents to the grave of his great grandmother in Maryville, La.

But there was a light side to events, too. Friends of Joe Streizshar sent up eight bottles of champagne as he spent New Year's Eve atop a flag pole in Chicago. He's been up there, 25 feet in the air, since Dec. 1 to raise money for muscular dystrophy.

"I only drank two and the ground started looking good to me, so I quit," said Joe, who is 22. It's no fun drinking alone.

And in Charlotte, N.C., the Queens Drive-in Theatre was ready to begin showing 'Gone With the Wind' but a wind storm blew down the screen New Year's Eve.

A rumbling earthquake shook New Year's revelers awake in Southern California on Thursday morning, but there were no reports of damage or injuries.

A New Year's Day blizzard roared out of the Rockies with 45 mile per hour winds and five- to ten-degree temperature readings. Winter storm watches were posted in Kansas, Nebraska and the Dakotas.

And for what it's worth, a California medical researcher said it may not have been the New Year's Eve alcohol that left the damage New Year's Day.

Dr. John Craig of the Los Angeles County-University of Southern California Medical Center said scientists believe it is what was in the alcohol — the acids, esters and other ingredients added for taste and aroma — that caused the fuzzy day-after feeling.

Gandhi 'Lacks Faith' In America's World

By MYRON L. BELKIND
Associated Press Writer
New Delhi, India — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi by accusing the United States of carrying out a Chilean-style destabilization effort in India has demonstrated her lack of faith in the word of the American government.

Over the past two years, Mrs. Gandhi has received categorical assurances from two ambassadors that the United States is not interfering in India's internal affairs and is not trying to topple her from power.

U.S. sources said Ambassador William B. Saxbe gave the most recent assurances both before and after Mrs. Gandhi declared a state of emergency six months ago in response to what she said was threatened internal chaos.

Saxbe, in an interview in August, went so far as to say he had told Mrs. Gandhi he would resign if he learned that any U.S. government agency was in any way interfering in India.

Saxbe's assurances followed those of former envoy Daniel P. Moynihan, who had initially vowed to Mrs. Gandhi that the United States had no hand in the 1973 ouster of Chilean President Salvador Allende.

Moynihan was embarrassed by the subsequent revelations that there had been covert U.S. backing of the Chilean leader's opponents.

He cabled Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger in September

1974 that the revelations had confirmed Mrs. Gandhi's worst suspicions and genuine fears about American policy toward India.

She is not sure but that she would be content to see others like her overthrown, Moynihan cabled. 'She knows full well that we have done our share and more of bloody and dishonorable deeds.'

Mrs. Gandhi used the Chilean disclosures as the focal point for her sharpest attack yet on the United States.

The attack came Wednesday at a convention of the ruling Congress party, but the strength of her tone and the bitterness of her words gave her speech an impact far beyond domestic politics.

'Some powers which had tasted success in their destabilization game in Chile nurtured similar designs against India,' she said.

'We have to remain alert against such foreign elements inside our country and weed them out from our midst.'

The State Department expressed its 'concern and dismay' at the allegations, and U.S. embassy sources here expressed fear that Mrs. Gandhi's increasing public rancor against the United States could only serve to jeopardize Indo-American ties.

Mrs. Gandhi's anti-American stance pleased the large pro-Soviet left wing lobby in her Congress Party, which had been worried by the prime minister's sharp turn towards the right on the economic front since declaring the emergency.

'Her criticism of the United States could all be part of a delicate balancing act between the left and the right in her party, and the United States is a convenient foreign bogey,' said one diplomat.

Americans To Enter Angolan War

BOSTON (AP) — Some 300 CIA-sponsored Americans are ready to join an equal number already fighting in the Angolan civil war, and 150 of the new recruits took Army refresher training, the Christian Science Monitor reports.

Staff correspondent David Anable said in a story in Friday editions that the waiting Americans were ready to go as soon as the CIA can obtain further funds. He said the recruits took the refresher course at Ft. Benning, Ga.

In Washington on Thursday, White House Deputy Press Secretary John Carlson said, "The story is without foundation." A CIA spokesman said "the total story is nonsense." A State Department spokesman said it was "without foundation and ridiculous" and the Defense Department said it had "nothing on it."

Sources for the Monitor story were described as "senior mercenary officers familiar with the situation both in Angola and the United States who are 'close to the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency'."

The group awaiting departure includes 15 South Vietnamese, the Monitor said. American members were said to be recently discharged soldiers or on leave from Army special forces units in the United States and in the Panama Canal Zone.

Recruiting was said to be under way for 150 pilots and mechanics to fly and maintain a squadron of 13 French-built helicopters en route to Angola through South Africa.

The newspaper said most Americans fighting in Angola were with the National Union for the Total Independence of Angola (UNITA) in the south, a faction supported by South African troops. However, it said, some are with another faction, the National Front for the Liberation of Angola (FNLA) in the north.

Those two factions are fighting a third, the Russian-backed Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola (MLPA), alongside which Cuban troops are fighting. The MLPA holds the central part of the country.

More than 60,000 fans cheered the rock n' roll king, who turns 41 next week. During a 90-minute show, he threw dozens of blue scarves into the audience.

Presley abruptly left the stage shortly after starting his act, returned a few minutes later and apologized. He said he ripped the seat of his tight white pants.

'Rookie' Enjoyed 1st Year On Board

By NANCY HICKS
Star Staff Writer

A 14-year old boy sat watching the national presidential conventions and began dreaming about becoming a politician. It was the summer of 1956.

In the winter of 1975, almost 1976, that boy, now a man, sat surrounded by stacks of papers, reports, memos and more reports, looking back over his first year as a Lancaster County commissioner.

"In every way it's more than I anticipated... more choices, more demanding, more issues and more complex issues," said H. Bruce Hamilton, the youngest commissioner and the rookie on the county board.

Though the frustrations have been plentiful, Hamilton enjoyed his first year as a county commissioner.

"Maybe you're not supposed to say this, but on the whole I liked the job; I liked it very much," said Hamilton.

But then Hamilton has spent much of his time since that 1956 TV introduction preparing to help people through politics scene.

His university work, political science and history, then a law degree, gave him insight. His work on the 1960 Kennedy presidential campaign and an attempt for the Congressional seat in 1968 under a new party, called appropriately The New Party, were training grounds.

He only received 2 1/2% of the vote that election, but he spent less per vote than any candidate and raised the important issues of the Vietnam War and the economic imbalance.

But the problems and frustrations started early.

Still wet behind the ears, Hamilton fell into the Colin bond controversy in late January, when Commissioner Robert Colin failed to file his performance bond and his seat was declared vacant.

Colin was soon reappointed, but Hamilton was criticized by some Democrats for not being political enough — not working to get Colin replaced with a Democrat.

But Hamilton's reaction to the shooting of black Lincolnite, Sherrell Lewis, by a sheriff's deputy brought him the most criticism.

Hamilton, who was outspoken in his criticism of the policies of the sheriff's department, received hate mail and midnight telephone calls from drunks calling him a "cop hater."

But to this day Hamilton, who with Councilman John Robinson spearheaded a study of law enforcement practices and policies, believes what he said and did was "responsible and proper and needed to be done by somebody."

When he ran for office, Hamilton had just a part of the picture of what the county board — the three-member legislative and administrative head of county government — does.

With 15 hours a week of work he could make a significant contribution, he was told.

"I think I knew all along it wasn't true, but I told my law partners and my wife it would be a part-time job."

Hamilton even purchased season tickets to the foreign film series. He and his wife have been twice.

Instead of films or even nights at home, Hamilton spends more than 30 hours a week on reports, administrative details and meetings, meetings, meetings. Hamilton sits through an average 15 meetings a week, many of which are in the evening.

And the issues are many and complex.

"One day we receive piles of documents on complicated zoning and transportation issues in the comprehensive plan. Then the next day comes a thick report on long-range data processing plans."

The issues are constant. While the three commissioners try to find time to ponder the larger problems of growth and government consolidation, they are bombarded daily with other decisions — a group wants to hold a rock concert, a man wants to open a tavern, a bigger copying machine is needed for a county office.

And Hamilton, who likes to

think issues through thoroughly and logically, sometimes feels frustrated.

"Much of our time is spent reacting to things brought up. We get bogged down in day-to-day issues. We find ourselves without enough time to sit back and reflect about the big picture, to initiate things."

Interesting and rewarding as it may be, politics also has taken its toll.

The three-member law firm where Hamilton was partner had to break up because of possible conflicts of interest. And Hamilton, who could be bringing in $30,000 or more in a prestigious, private firm, makes $10,500 as a commissioner and is looking for a part-time job that would be interesting and without offering a conflict with his office.

"I'm not sorry I don't make that kind of money," said Hamilton, who feels that helping people through public office is more important.

But he does admit that making a commissioner salary only pinches a bit. "I'm at a certain point in life where I have a certain life-style and certain commitments."

But his commitments also extend to county government and Hamilton is hoping that 1976 will bring him more time to work on an item he considers of major importance — county-city government merger.

The next year will also see some other major items facing county government, including a stormy controversy over the finished Comprehensive Plan, the labor union issue and a rough budget session as the County Board reaches the limit of its taxing authority.

And there will also be "all kinds of other issues I couldn't anticipate if I sat here all day."

Would Paying Taxes In May Ease The Pain?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Would it be a good idea to spread out the collective pain of income taxes, instead of having everybody's come due April 15?

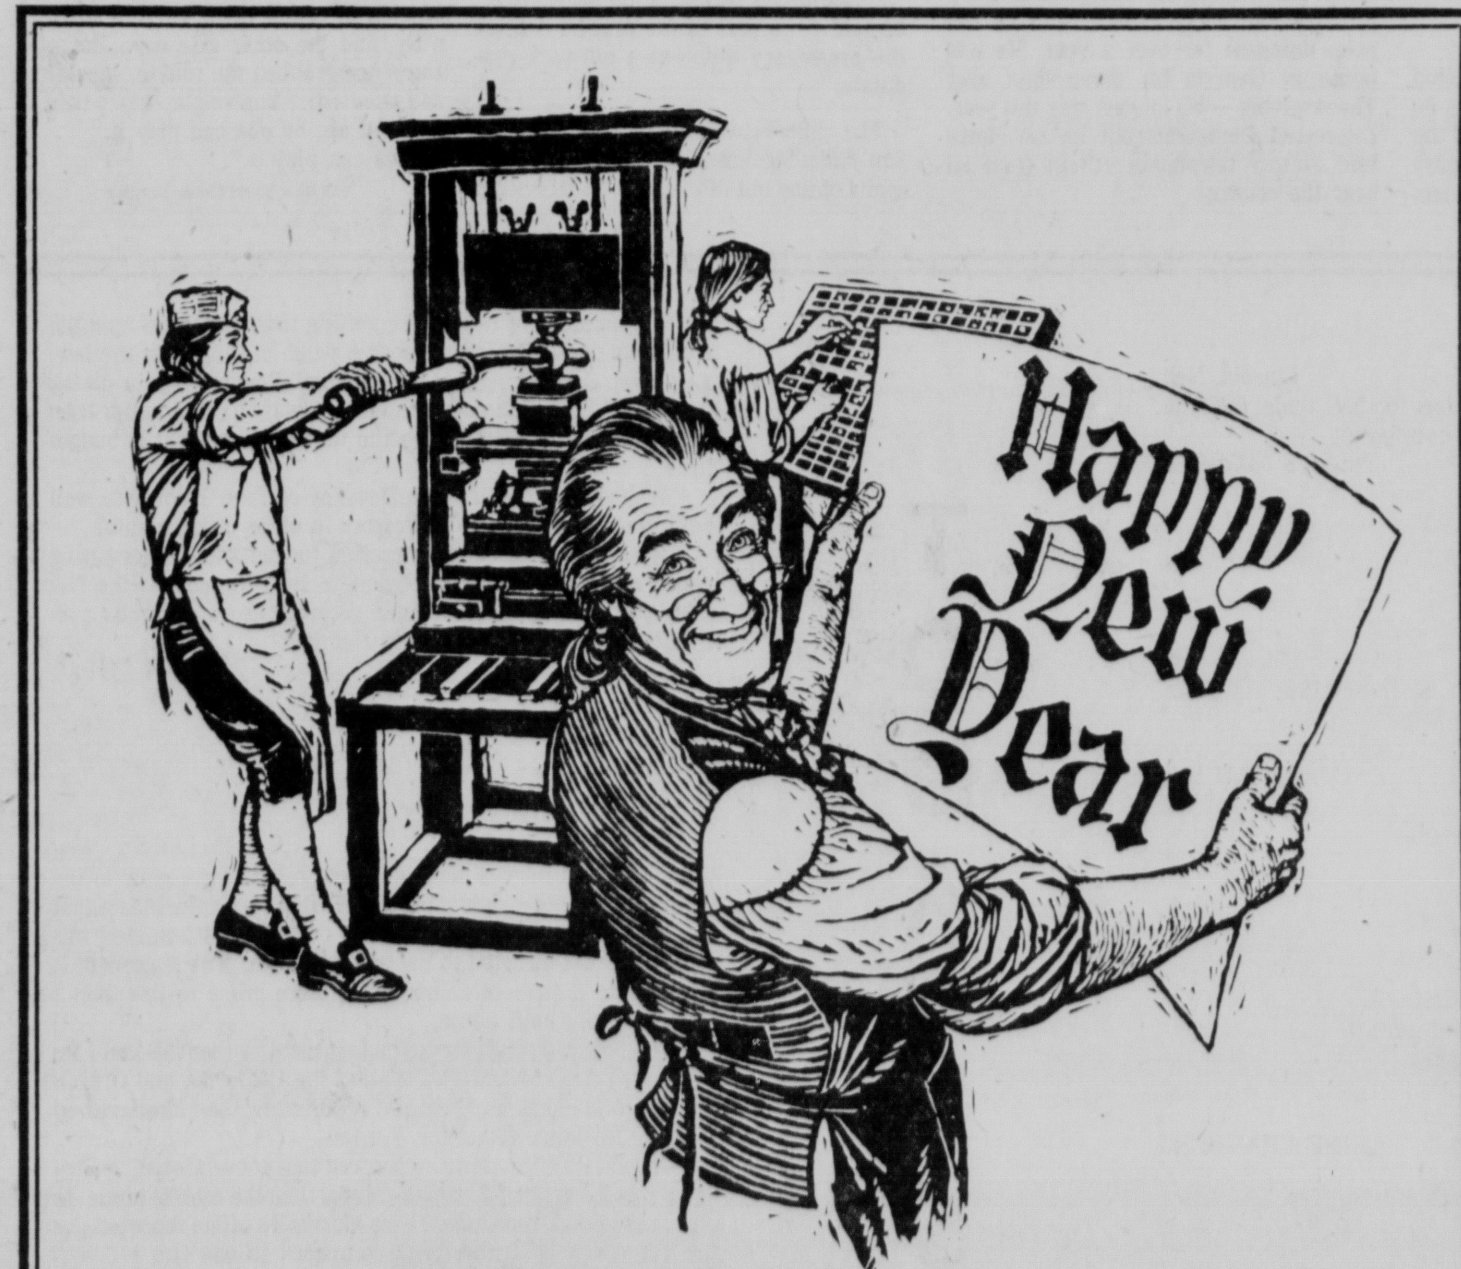

Chairman Charles A. Vanik, D-Ohio, of a House Ways and Means subcommittee, thinks so and would like to have suggestions.

Vanik said in a statement Thursday that the Internal Revenue Service now is swamped with returns and taxpayer inquiries in a brief period each year, and therefore cannot do as good a job as it might otherwise.

"I believe that a staggered filing date could save the public millions of dollars in more efficient and effective tax collection procedures," Vanik said.

He said income tax collection now peaks in early February and again just before April 15.

The Advertising Staff of the Lincoln Journal & Star wishes you a happy holiday and a healthy, peaceful, and prosperous year to come.

Program Death Cause Doubted

An educational release program which saw selected inmates enrolled and housed at Western Nebraska Technical College at Sidney is being brought to an end this month, and it is difficult to figure out why

By most accounts it was a successful program so far as the inmates were concerned. State Corrections Director Joe Vitek termed it "a noble experiment." Inmate department did not seem to be too much of a problem, no greater problem than in other educational release programs. The local sheriff said he did not consider the inmates (a total of 60 took vocational classes through the program and nine were last enrolled) to be a risk to the community

But the inmates were clearly unwelcome at Western Nebraska Technical College — at least unwelcome to live in the college dormitories, living space which the college obviously covets. Because the president of the college governing board said "We'd be happy to have them take courses, but we'd prefer they find meals and housing elsewhere. They caused too much friction." Parenthetically, one would think if they caused friction in the dorms, they would on campus and in classes, too.

And the college president, who was instrumental in ending the program, claimed some incidents involving inmates hurt enrollment and angered regular students and their parents. There have been charges that political infighting among board members and college officials caused by a circutious route the provoking of community resentment against the program, which, if true, would cast the program in the role of an undeserved victim.

The reasons the state scrubbed the educational release program are grounded in specious argument. With six guards supervising nine inmates in housing capable of holding 40, Vitek said the program's continuation could not be justified economically. That's nonsense. The primary justification is in the results of the program, not economics, but it could be conducted economically by scaling down the number of supervisory personnel and the number of living units or areas to correspond with the number of inmates involved. In addition, the 335 miles separating administrative offices in Lincoln with the program in Sidney made administration difficult, Vitek said. That's worse nonsense. That line of reasoning strikes a blow against community-based programs of any kind and if it were followed all regional and local offices of all state agencies would be called back to Lincoln.

It doesn't seem to us that there has been an honest reason given for the end of the program except community resentment. And perhaps underlying that reason is regional politics. This kind of attitude against correctional reform programs in local communities has occurred before and the state has backed down before as in this case. It is another example of crippling the attempt to change the criminal pattern.

Maybe This Year

Majority leaders in Congress claim the last session a productive one. The President intends to use a do-nothing Congress line in his attempt to win nomination and election to a term on his own right. Both are sort of right, depending on one's point of view; but a more honest appraisal is that neither are.

This last session of Congress was no better or no worse than many. Congress started a good many good fights it has not yet finished, but some of them may be finished. It did well in the internal reform area. It exhibited its determination to exercise a certain element of power in the foreign relations area and in oversight of secret agencies — uses of power designed to cut the imperial presidency down to size.

But it left tax reform alone and passed a kind, political energy bill, which is somewhat to its credit because people will have some time now to adjust to higher fuel prices, but one which does not solve the nation's energy dilemma.

It was the energy crisis which prompted Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wisc., to tell us one year ago that "I expect Congress to act decisively." Further, the respected House fiscal expert said, "I have never seen a brighter, better-trained and more serious group than this year's class of freshmen. If they can't save this country, nobody can."

Reuss spoke from the perspective America had in late 1974, which was a grimmer time than the present.

In the past year, the freshman class of which he spoke started off confidently and brilliantly and then took its lumps. It is now part of a not great-not bad congress.

Maybe this year it will save the country.

LA VERNA HASSLER

Patchwork Prairie Country

Winter walks the land now. The sun wraps itself in a smoky cloud and smolders. There is no warmth when I step outdoors. I pull my coat tight around me, feel the brisk chill of wind hit my nose and blink.

Frosty, crystal lace drapes the trees and bushes but only for a little while. With each icy breath of wind, more and more of the glistening crystals spill to the ground.

The old year has drawn to a close. Another Christmas has come and gone to add to the recollections of many happy holidays. Before leaving Christmas, I heard of a very amusing incident that took place while the family was preparing for the merry time. After the cookies were baked and the candy wrapped, Grandmother decided it would be fun to sing and dance around the Christmas tree. Her only little grandchild is about four years old. But the little girl had ideas of her own when it came to the selection of the song. She insisted on singing "Old MacDonald Had A Farm."

Many books for Bicentennial reading are coming off the presses. Two such books that I have recently read are "Bold Leaders of the American Revolution" by Colonel Red Reeder. Colonel Reeder is well known for his many books on military history. It has been said that history is no more than the story of the lives of men. This book gave me the opportunity to understand more fully our national heritage. Such men as Ethan Allen, proud giant of a man, who led Vermont's Green Mountain Boys and Anthony Wayne who lifted the morale of the disheartened American forces at Stony Point are discussed. Women came in for their share of glory, such as Margaret Corbin. She took her dead husband's place in the front lines and became known as Molly Pitcher.

"A Mirror of Greatness" by

Bruce Bliven tells of the lives of six heroic Americans who shaped our nation. These are not war heroes but include Benjamin Franklin, Ralph Waldo Emerson, and Thomas Jefferson.

Unless one is a teacher, people of history are forgotten. Students also have close contact with books and so have their minds constantly enlightened. Perhaps that is why I again enjoyed reading of the exploits and new perspectives explaining more fully the times in which these Americans lived and worked.

Picturesque Portraits I would like to frame for the keeping.

Cattle coming in from the fields swatched in cloud puffs as their warm breath strikes the cold air.

School children heading back to school in their bright Christmas gift finery.

The fine gait of a riding horse making the snow fly as its hooves beat the earth.

The Courts Scratch For Power

(Editor's Note: The following is from the editorial pages of the Los Angeles Times.)

The decision of a three-judge federal panel in the case of the abducted newspaper editor is simply absurd. But absurd as it is, the ruling is a logical extension of a 10-year trend toward judicial censorship.

More and more judges have developed an itch for more and more power, and they are scratching it at every opportunity. In doing so, they are willing to tear up the First Amendment, the primary guardian of all our liberties.

Consider the decision of the panel that handled the appeal of the man who abducted Reg Murphy, then editor of the Atlanta Constitution and now editor and publisher of the San Francisco Examiner. The judges ordered a new trial for the abductor, who was convicted of extortion on Aug. 3, 1975. On what basis was a new trial ordered?

The court ruled that what it called prejudicial errors by the prosecution and pre-trial publicity prevented a fair trial. Of the man's guilt there was no doubt. He admitted abducting Murphy; the $700,000 ransom was found in the home of the defendant, who entered a plea of insanity.

The three judges objected to a closing argument by the prosecuting attorney, who asserted that acquitting the defendant would be a "blank check" for him to commit crimes against judge, jury and community; while the judges objected to this bit of hyperbole as prejudicial to a fair trial, they dealt more extensively with the pretrial publicity.

Sitting as judges but also as presumptive editors, the panel noted that the sensational crime attracted widespread coverage in the news media. This, they speculated, overwhelmed the jury and tainted the trial. The convicted extortioner's guilt evidently was the one thing the panel chose to ignore.

So now there will be a new trial, unless the order is overturned, and presumably there will be gag orders restricting information and a hunt for jurors who do not read, who do not see and who are unaware of the world around them. Although Murphy is personally involved, his comment on the decision is hard to discount: "I presume the judges would like the trial to be held on Guam or in the Bavarian Alps before a jury which speaks no English and knows no American customs."

The government is considering an appeal of the panel's decision, but the judiciary in the past decade has shown little inclination to limit its powers to impose censorship on the conduct of criminal proceedings.

This predisposition toward censorship is asserted in behalf of fair trials. But predictions of harm that publicity may cause are based on nothing more than speculation, which, in turn, is based on no more than subjective judgment.

Justice Harry A. Blackmun, upholding one of the most restrictive orders ever issued against the press talked of the damage that publicity "might" do in the trial of an alleged mass murderer.

Justice William J. Brennan Jr. in the Pentagon Papers case answered the arguments that the First Amendment can be case aside merely on "surmise or conjecture." Brennan said, "The entire thrust of the government's claim... has been that publication of the material sought to be enjoined 'could' or 'might' or 'may' prejudice the national interest in various ways. But the First Amendment tolerates absolutely no prior judicial restraints of the press predicated upon surmise or conjecture that untoward consequences may result."

Blackmun's ruling fortunately applies only to the Nebraska case. He acted alone as the justice assigned to handle actions from the judicial circuit in which Nebraska is situated. But if he is upheld, his decision will hand to the courts unprecedented powers of censorship.

And now comes former Army Lt. William L. Calley Jr. to the Supreme Court with an appeal to overturn his My Lai murder conviction. Calley, convicted of murdering 22 civilians in the South Vietnam hamlet, argues that congressional testimony concerning the massacre was wrongfully withheld from his trial. But, more than that, he also contends that publicity about the massacre prejudiced the six members of the court-martial panel.

We have reached a strange point in this country. The publicity generated not by the press but by the nature of monstrous crimes is used as an excuse by the courts to impose censorship on the public. Under the rationale used by the federal court in Atlanta, all information about the Watergate conspiracy could have been suppressed once the Watergate burglars, the most petty actors in the sordid drama, were arrested and charged. The implications of this kind of judicial tyranny by the courts need to be thoroughly understood by the public.

Eight years ago, the chairman of a committee that studied the issue of press freedom concluded, "The prospect, in this pre-trial period, of judges of various criminal courts of high and low degree sitting as petty tyrants, handing down sentences of fine and imprisonment for contempt of court against lawyers, policemen and reporters and editors, is not attractive. Such an innovation might well cut prejudicial publicity... but at what price?"

The chairman of that committee was not an editor. He was Harold R. Medina, a senior judge on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit.

The price is now clear. For the first time in the history of the country, the courts, the chief defenders of the Constitution and in utter disdain of that Constitution, have claimed the power of wide censorship over the American people, a censorship that strikes at the heart of democratic government.

The courts, no less than legislatures and executives, are accountable to the people, and must function in the sunlight of public exposure and scrutiny.

ANTHONY LEWIS

Don't Write Off Jimmy Carter

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. — Jimmy Carter has spent two nights in Cambridge recently, staying as a guest in two homes not far from Harvard Square. The next morning, after he left, each hostess went upstairs and found that he had made his bed. That is the latest political news in Cambridge.

Carter has begun to make an impression on this cradle of liberal democracy, as he evidently has on other places. People weary by political fund-raising parties find his simplicity winning. They like it, for example, that he stays over in someone's home.

National magazines and newspapers have been writing that Carter is making the country take him seriously as a candidate. In this community, he has done something else. He has made people take seriously the new process for nominating presidential candidates.

The expert wisdom has been — perhaps it still is — that with so many Democratic candidates in the race, none was likely to emerge as the nominee. The theory was that they would divide the vote among them and go into the convention next July with a handful of delegates each. Then, after a ballot or two, the leaders would forget the official aspirants and pick someone else: probably Hubert Humphrey.

Jimmy Carter argues with conviction that that scenario is fantasy. By spring, he says, most of the names that now fill the list will have faded away. The primary choices will be down to two or three men, and one of them will come into the convention with a lead.

He is an imperturbable optimist about his own chances. On his theory of how the race will develop, I asked him how many of the convention delegates did he expect to have. "About 50%," he said.

Whether or not Carter emerges from the pack, his prediction of how the system will work seems to me to make a good deal of sense. The New Hampshire, Massachusetts, and Florida primaries will be over by mid-March, as well as caucuses in many more states, and some of the hopefuls will surely have shown up so poorly that they will be counted out. That happened at an early date in 1972, after all.

In any event, anyone who writes off the early state delegate selections as insignificant — candidate or observer — is plainly making a mistake. Carter says that Sen. Henry Jackson has made that mistake by aiming at the New York primary on April 6. He argues that New York will be the twenty-fourth state to pick its delegates — and the momentum will be clear by then.

Jimmy Carter is not writing anything off. He is working for delegates in every primary and every caucus, and he has been doing so for over a year. He was home in Georgia for three days over Thanksgiving — his longest stay this year. Interested Democrats out in, say, Iowa find Jimmy telephoning them from all over the country.

CARTER

... he's made his own bed ...

The other thing that makes him different is that he sees nothing wrong with this endless, exhausting struggle for delegates. Indicate sympathy, and he declines it.

"The ordeal seems to me instructive," he said — "a part of the process. I think the presidency deserves a full-time candidate."

The other view is the one expressed by Sen. Adlai Stevenson 3d last month in formally opting out of the race. "The system of selection," he said, makes it hard for a candidate today "to discuss issues seriously and be heard clearly." He is caught in "a morass of unintelligible regulations and dervish-like activity, all largely beyond his control and comprehension."

It is fair enough to ask determination and stamina of anyone who wants to be president. On the other hand, the suspicion lingers that what we ask of presidential candidates now is so burdensome that the sensitive and skeptical will not try.

Or has something happened to the office itself that discourages some who might once have been attracted? Sen. Gaylord Nelson of Wisconsin, who by his record and ability ought to be a candidate, says flatly that he will not be. When they asked him why, he said too much had gone wrong lately in the presidency — and it reminded him of a story about Leo Durocher.

Durocher, managing the Chicago Cubs, brought a young outfielder up from the minors. When the Cubs got well ahead in a game, he put the rookie in center field. He promptly dropped a fly ball and made a wild throw — and the score was tied.

Durocher took the kid out and put himself in center field. Then he dropped a fly, and the other side won. Enraged, Durocher grabbed the rookie, shook him and shouted: "You've got center field so screwed up, no one can play it."

Big Redneck Baloney

Lincoln, Neb. It seems that The Lincoln Star likes to criticize the people who see the unfairness of the Fiesta Bowl fund drive in contrast to the lessened funds for the unfortunate of Lincoln. Yes, Lincoln Star, we are the anti-football crowd and are very proud of it. Yes, we are comparing the increased number of apples going to the NU marching band to the decreased number of oranges going to the poor, the incarcerated, the lame and the elderly of our community. A dollar spent on Big Redneck or personal greed is a dollar that cannot be spent on helping people. The crux of the problem is not the marching band, but Big Redneck itself. The people The Star calls anti-football are generally not anti-football, but are anti-Big Redneck Sports should not be just for the football elite, but broad-based and allow for greater participation in games such as volleyball, tennis, gymnastics, etc. Unfortunately, Go Big Redneck football has grown into a madness, an obsession entirely out of proportion to its value as a sport. It is a shame the people of Nebraska cannot find better ways of bolstering their egos. The business community of Lincoln has promoted and exploited the Go Big Redneck madness to the utmost. Big Redneck has economic value to the bourgeoisie, charity does not. Mobile Home Safety

Lincoln, Neb. Some very interesting and timely information came to my attention that I feel should be shared. It is very unfortunate that many worthy articles, such as the one which stimulated this report, are not directed to the general public. The statement is often made that mobile homes are more prone to fire than a conventionally built home. The following statistics were furnished by the National Fire Protection Association (NFPA) and the California and Oregon State Fire Marshall's offices and reported by the Manufactured Housing Institute, Chantilly, Virginia. The 1974 NFPA statistics showed that conventional housing had a fire incidence 1.27 times greater than the mobile home. In the same period, the Oregon Fire Marshall's office reported one fire for every 128.3 dwellings compared to one fire for each 226.27 mobile housing units in the state. The California statistics showed that mobile housing was less prone to fire than conventional housing by a margin of 3.57 times.

Consumer safety is not new to the mobile housing industry. A code evolved by the American National Standards Institute (ANSI) was developed in the 1950's and is now a mobile housing law in 46 states. In addition the national standard that is expected to become effective in 1976 establishing a Federal Construction and Safety Standard is anticipated to be substantially coordinated with the ANSI/NFPA Code. The mobile housing industry has been instrumental in the development of such consumer protection devices as the smoke detector. This life-saving device is now a standard installation in mobile housing, however, it is still not required in single-family conventional housing. In the state of Nebraska, the law now requires that a state seal be placed on each unit manufactured for sale in the state. The enforcement of the program is the responsibility of the State Department of Health. Consumer with complaints may call 1-402-471-2662. Thus a consumer knows that when he buys a home from the mobile housing industry that unit was built to the ANSI standards. This is the way that the mobile housing industry assures you, the consumer, that your safety is assured. In an industry where two out of every five single-family units being sold are being built, it is comforting to know that these homes are not only the most economical but are the safest. RUDY NOLEN

Program Death Cause Doubted

An educational release program which saw selected inmates enrolled and housed at Western Nebraska Technical College at Sidney is being brought to an end this month, and it is difficult to figure out why.

By most accounts it was a successful program so far as the inmates were concerned. State Corrections Director Joe Vitek termed it "a noble experiment." Inmate department did not seem to be too much of a problem; no greater problem than in other educational release programs. The local sheriff said he did not consider the inmates (a total of 60 took vocational classes through the program and nine were last enrolled) to be a risk to the community.

But the inmates were clearly unwelcome at Western Nebraska Technical College — at least unwelcome to live in the college dormitories, living space which the college obviously covets. Because the president of the college governing board said "We'd be happy to have them take courses, but we'd prefer they find meals and housing elsewhere. They caused too much friction." Parenthetically, one would think if they caused friction in the dorms, they would on campus and in classes, too.

And the college president, who was instrumental in ending the program, claimed some incidents involving inmates hurt enrollment and angered regular students and their parents. There have been charges that political infighting among board members and college officials caused by a circuitous route the provoking of community resentment against the program, which, if true, would cast the program in the role of an undesired victim.

The reasons the state scrubbed the educational release program are grounded in specious argument. With six guards supervising nine inmates in housing capable of holding 40, Vitek said the program's continuation could not be justified economically. That's nonsense. The primary justification is in the results of the program, not economics, but it could be conducted economically by scaling down the number of supervisory personnel and the number of living units or areas to correspond with the number of inmates involved. In addition, the 335 miles separating administrative offices in Lincoln with the program in Sidney made administration difficult, Vitek said. That's worse nonsense. That line of reasoning strikes a blow against community-based programs of any kind and if it were followed all regional and local offices of all state agencies would be called back to Lincoln.

It doesn't seem to us that there has been an honest reason given for the end of the program except community resentment. And perhaps underlying that reason is regional politics. This kind of attitude against correctional reform programs in local communities has occurred before and the state has backed down before as in this case. It is another example of crippling the attempt to change the criminal pattern.

Maybe This Year

Majority leaders in Congress claim the last session a productive one. The President intends to use a do-nothing Congress line in his attempt to win nomination and election to a term on his own right. Both are sort of right, depending on one's point of view; but a more honest appraisal is that neither are.

This last session of Congress was no better or no worse than many. Congress started a good many good fights it has not yet finished, but some of them may be finished. It did well in the internal reform area. It exhibited its determination to exercise a certain element of power in the foreign relations area and in oversight of secret agencies — uses of power designed to cut the imperial presidency down to size.

But it left tax reform alone and passed a kind, political energy bill, which is somewhat to its credit because people will have some time now to adjust to higher fuel prices, but one which does not solve the nation's energy dilemma.

It was the energy crisis which prompted Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wisc., to tell us one year ago that "I expect Congress to act decisively." Further, the respected House fiscal expert said, "I have never seen a brighter, better-trained and more serious group than this year's class of freshmen. If they can't save this country, nobody can."

Reuss spoke from the perspective America had in late 1974, which was a grimmer time than the present.

In the past year, the freshman class of which he spoke started off confidently and brilliantly and then took its lumps. It is now part of a not great-not bad congress.

Maybe this year it will save the country.

Patchwork Prairie Country

Winter walks the land now. The sun wraps itself in a smoky cloud and smolders. There is no warmth when I step outdoors. I pull my coat tight around me, feel the brisk chill of wind hit my nose and blink.

Frosty, crystal lace drapes the trees and bushes but only for a little while. With each icy breath of wind, more and more of the glistening crystals spill to the ground.

The old year has drawn to a close. Another Christmas has come and gone to add to the recollections of many happy holidays. Before leaving Christmas, I heard of a very amusing incident that took place while the family was preparing for the merry time. After the cookies were baked and the candy wrapped, Grandmother decided it would be fun to sing and dance around the Christmas tree. Her only little grandchild is about four years old. But the little girl had ideas of her own when it came to the selection of the song. She insisted on singing "Old MacDonald Had A Farm."

Many books for Bicentennial reading are coming off the presses. Two such books that I have recently read are "Bold Leaders of the American Revolution" by Colonel Red Reeder. Colonel Reeder is well known for his many books on military history. It has been said that history is no more than the story of the lives of men. This book gave me the opportunity to understand more fully our national heritage. Such men as Ethan Allen, proud giant of a man who led Vermont's Green Mountain Boys, and Anthony Wayne who lifted the morale of the disheartened American forces at Stony Point are discussed. Women came in for their share of glory, such as Margaret Corbin. She took her dead husband's place in the front lines and became known as Molly Pitcher.

"A Mirror For Greatness" by

Bruce Bliven tells of the lives of six heroic Americans who shaped our nation. These are not war heroes but include Benjamin Franklin, Ralph Waldo Emerson, and Thomas Jefferson.

Unless one is a teacher, people of history are forgotten. Students also have close contact with books and so have their minds constantly enlightened. Perhaps that is why I again enjoyed reading of the exploits and new perspectives explaining more fully the times in which these Americans lived and worked.

Picturesque Portraits I would like to frame for the keeping:

Snow-crowned trees liked robed monarchs standing stalwartly against the wintry blast.

Outdoor Christmas lights coming down now that they have blinked their last happy message of the year.

Snowflake fairies dancing on the crystal bed of a creek.

A little fellow shoveling snow, wearing a little-fellow smile.

The new calendar on the wall, secret days of happiness or sadness ahead but the wonderful feeling that of this day it is unblemished.

A wren house swinging back and forth in a tree wearing a snow cap but looking so lonely.

Cattle coming in from the fields swatched in cloud puffs as their warm breath strikes the cold air.

School children heading back to school in their bright Christmas gift finery.

The fine gait of a riding horse making the snow fly as its hooves beat the earth.

Chicadees darting up and down the trunk of the pinoak tree, happy as a chicadee can be.

Me, slumping into my easy chair, happy as a housewife can be after all the hubbub of the happy holidays.

The Farmer nearby sleeping in his chair, exhausted by the hubbub of the holidays.

(Editor's Note: The following is from the editorial pages of the Los Angeles Times.)

The decision of a three-judge federal panel in the case of the abducted newspaper editor is simply absurd. But absurd as it is, the ruling is a logical extension of a 10-year trend toward judicial censorship.

More and more judges have developed an itch for more and more power, and they are scratching it at every opportunity. In doing so, they are willing to tear up the First Amendment, the primary guardian of all our liberties.

Consider the decision of the panel that handled the appeal of the man who abducted Reg Murphy, then editor of the Atlanta Constitution and now editor and publisher of the San Francisco Examiner. The judges ordered a new trial for the abductor, who was convicted of extortion on Aug. 3, 1975. On what basis was a new trial ordered?

The court ruled that what it called prejudicial errors by the prosecution and pre-trial publicity prevented a fair trial. Of the man's guilt there was no doubt. He admitted abducting Murphy; the $700,000 ransom was found in the home of the defendant, who entered a plea of insanity.

The three judges objected to a closing argument by the prosecuting attorney, who asserted that acquitting the defendant would be a "blank check" for him to commit crimes against judge, jury and community; while the judges objected to this bit of hyperbole as prejudicial to a fair trial, they dealt more extensively with the pretrial publicity.

Sitting as judges but also as presumptive editors, the panel noted that the sensational crime attracted widespread coverage in the news media. This, they speculated, overwhelmed the jury and tainted the trial. The convicted extortioner's guilt evidently was the one thing the panel chose to ignore.

So now there will be a new trial, unless the order is overturned, and presumably there will be gag orders restricting information and a hunt for jurors who do not read, who do not see and who are unaware of the world around them. Although Murphy is personally involved, his comment on the decision is hard to discount: "I presume the judges would like the trial to be held on Guam or in the Bavarian Alps before a jury which speaks no English and knows no American customs."

The government is considering an appeal of the panel's decision, but the judiciary in the past decade has shown little inclination to limit its powers to impose censorship on the conduct of criminal proceedings.

This predisposition toward censorship is asserted in behalf of fair trials. But predictions of harm that publicity may cause are based on nothing more than speculation, which, in turn, is based on no more than subjective judgment.

Justice Harry A. Blackmun, upholding one of the most restrictive orders ever issued against the press talked of the damage that publicity "might" do in the trial of an alleged mass murderer.

Justice William J. Brennan Jr. in the Pentagon Papers case answered the arguments that the First Amendment can be case aside merely on "surmise or conjecture." Brennan said, "The entire thrust of the government's claim... has been that publication of the material sought to be enjoined 'could' or 'might' or 'may' prejudice the national interest in various ways. But the First Amendment tolerates absolutely no prior judicial restraints of the press predicated upon surmise or conjecture that untoward consequences may result."

Blackmun's ruling fortunately applies only to the Nebraska case. He acted alone as the justice assigned to handle actions from the judicial circuit in which Nebraska is situated. But if he is upheld, his decision will hand to the courts unprecedented powers of censorship.

And now comes former Army Lt. William L. Calley Jr. to the Supreme Court with an appeal to overturn his My Lai murder conviction. Calley, convicted of murdering 22 civilians in the South Vietnam hamlet, argues that congressional testimony concerning the massacre was wrongfully withheld from his trial. But, more than that, he also contends that publicity about the massacre prejudiced the six members of the court-martial panel.

We have reached a strange point in this country. The publicity generated not by the press but by the nature of monstrous crimes is used as an excuse by the courts to impose censorship on the public. Under the rationale used by the federal court in Atlanta, all information about the Watergate conspiracy could have been suppressed once the Watergate burglars, the most petty actors in the sordid drama, were arrested and charged. The implications of this kind of judicial tyranny by the courts need to be thoroughly understood by the public.

Eight years ago, the chairman of a committee that studied the issue of press freedom concluded, "The prospect, in this pre-trial period, of judges of various criminal courts of high and low degree sitting as petty tyrants, handing down sentences of fine and imprisonment for contempt of court against lawyers, policemen and reporters and editors, is not attractive. Such an innovation might well cut prejudicial publicity... but at what price?"

The chairman of that committee was not an editor. He was Harold R. Medina, a senior judge on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit.

The price is now clear. For the first time in the history of the country, the courts, the chief defenders of the Constitution and in utter disdain of that Constitution, have claimed the power of wide censorship over the American people, a censorship that strikes at the heart of democratic government.

The courts, no less than legislatures and executives, are accountable to the people, and must function in the sunlight of public exposure and scrutiny.

Don't Write Off Jimmy Carter

ANTHONY LEWIS

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. — Jimmy Carter has spent two nights in Cambridge recently, staying as a guest in two homes not far from Harvard Square. The next morning, after he left, each hostess went upstairs and found that he had made his bed. That is the latest political news in Cambridge.

Carter has begun to make an impression on this cradle of liberal democracy, as he evidently has on other places. People weary by political fund-raising parties find his simplicity winning. They like it, for example, that he stays over in someone's home.

National magazines and newspapers have been writing that Carter is making the country take him seriously as a candidate. In this community, he has done something else. He has made people take seriously the new process for nominating presidential candidates.

The expert wisdom has been — perhaps it still is — that with so many Democratic candidates in the race, none was likely to emerge as the nominee. The theory was that they would divide the vote among them and go into the convention next July with a handful of delegates each. Then, after a ballot or two, the leaders would forget the official aspirants and pick someone else: probably Hubert Humphrey.

Jimmy Carter argues with conviction that that scenario is fantasy. By spring, he says, most of the names that now fill the list will have faded away. The primary choices will be down to two or three men, and one of them will come into the convention with a lead.

He is an imperturbable optimist about his own chances. On his theory of how the race will develop, I asked him how many of the convention delegates did he expect to have. "About 50%," he said.

Whether or not Carter emerges from the pack, his prediction of how the system will work seems to me to make a good deal of sense. The New Hampshire, Massachusetts, and Florida primaries will be over by mid-March, as well as caucuses in many more states, and some of the hopefuls will surely have shown up so poorly that they will be counted out. That happened at an early date in 1972, after all.

In any event, anyone who writes off the early state delegate selections as insignificant — candidate or observer — is plainly making a mistake. Carter says that Sen. Henry Jackson has made that mistake by aiming at the New York primary on April 6. He argues that New York will be the twenty-fourth state to pick its delegates — and the momentum will be clear by then.

Jimmy Carter is not writing anything off. He is working for delegates in every primary and every caucus, and he has been doing so for over a year. He was home in Georgia for three days over Thanksgiving — his longest stay this year. Interested Democrats out in, say, Iowa find Jimmy telephoning them from all over the country.

CARTER

... he's made his own bed ...

The other thing that makes him different is that he sees nothing wrong with this endless, exhausting struggle for delegates. Indicate sympathy, and he declines it.

"The ordeal seems to me instructive," he said — "a part of the process. I think the presidency deserves a full-time candidate."

The other view is the one expressed by Sen. Adlai Stevenson 3d last month in formally opting out of the race. "The system of selection," he said, makes it hard for a candidate today "to discuss issues seriously and be heard clearly." He is caught in "a morass of unintelligible regulations and dervish-like activity, all largely beyond his control and comprehension."

It is fair enough to ask determination and stamina of anyone who wants to be president. On the other hand, the suspicion lingers that what we ask of presidential candidates now is so burdensome that the sensitive and skeptical will not try.

Or has something happened to the office itself that discourages some who might once have been attracted? Sen. Gaylord Nelson of Wisconsin, who by his record and ability ought to be a candidate, says flatly that he will not be. When they asked him why, he said too much had gone wrong lately in the presidency — and it reminded him of a story about Leo Durocher.

Durocher, managing the Chicago Cubs brought a young outfielder up from the minors. When the Cubs got well ahead in a game, he put the rookie in center field. He promptly dropped a fly ball and made a wild throw — and the score was tied.

Durocher took the kid out and put himself in center field. Then he dropped a fly, and the other side won. Enraged, Durocher grabbed the rookie, shook him and shouted: "You've got center field so screwed up, no one can play it." no one can play it."

Lincoln, Neb. It seems that The Lincoln Star likes to criticize the people who see the unfairness of the Fiesta Bowl fund drive in contrast to the lessened funds for the unfortunate of Lincoln. Yes, Lincoln Star, we are the anti-football crowd and are very proud of it. Yes, we are comparing the increased number of apples going to the NU marching band to the decreased number of oranges going to the poor, the incarcerated, the lame and the elderly of our community. A dollar spent on Big Redneck or personal greed is a dollar that cannot be spent on helping people.

The crux of the problem is not the marching band, but Big Redneck itself. The people The Star calls anti-football are generally not anti-football, but are anti-Big Redneck. Sports should not be just for the football elite, but broad-based and allow for greater participation in games such as volleyball, tennis, gymnastics, etc. Unfortunately, Go Big Redneck football has grown into a madness, an obsession entirely out of proportion to its value as a sport. It is a shame the people of Nebraska cannot find better ways of bolstering their egos.

Cheating Is Denied By Russia

Moscow (UPI) — The Soviet Union Thursday denied cheating on arms control agreements with the United States and accused American critics of trying to block a new weapons accord.

A lengthy policy statement in the Communist Party newspaper Pravda indicated the Soviet Union has its own reservations about American compliance with the arms accords.

The statement, apparently given top Kremlin approval, said America has yet to eliminate a "lack of clarity" about U.S. actions under the 1972 and 1974 agreements.

Pravda said the U.S.-Soviet Strategic Arms Limitation Talks are "too serious and too vitally important" to be used for "selfish political aims."

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger is expected to fly to Moscow in two weeks in an attempt to break a deadlock in talks for a new SALT agreement.

Soviet Communist leader Leonid Brezhnev had planned to visit the United States last year, but differences over the terms of the new pact delayed the trip.

"It is not the Soviet Union's fault that despite the existing advances there still remain at present several unresolved questions of the substance of the new agreement on the limitation of strategic offensive arms," Pravda said.

It blamed the deadlock on "certain political forces, including the United States, which have not given up their attempts to frustrate the cause of relaxation."

"Reactionary circles in the United States are trying, in particular, to hamper the current Soviet-American arms limitation talks," the statement said.

It accused Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., Sen. James Buckley, R-N.Y., former Defense Secretary Melvin Laird and Adm. Elmo Zumwalt, retired chief of naval operations, or concocting "groundless" charges of Soviet violations.

Pravda denied any Kremlin violations and said the United States has repeatedly recognized "the Soviet Union's adherence to the commitments undertaken by it under these agreements."

It said the SALT talks are "too serious and vitally important to be used for the conscious sowing of mistrust, as it is done by certain people in the West for various selfish political reasons."

Handwriting Is On The Wall

By WES ALBERS
Star Staff Writer

George Gallup is missing an entire subculture of political opinion because his pollsters knock on doors instead of reading walls.

Graffiti, often called the scrawl of the wild, runs the gamut from political to sexual, literary to crude. And, as one unidentified restroom author wrote, "These walls are a reflection of our lifestyle — good or bad."

An informal survey of Lincoln's choicest graffiti-covered walls — kind of a man-in-the-stall interview — reveals a blatant dissatisfaction with politicians, the military, drug laws, other graffiti and the world in general.

Ancient Graffiti

Graffiti, by the way, isn't new. The clay-lined walls of French caves are filled with 30,000-year-old doodles of the deer, the bison and the bull. And a lot of the latter has been written on walls since then.

Politicians are common targets. "Gerald Ford flunked economics!" proclaims one author, apparently less than satisfied with the President's economic policy. "Rockefeller ruined New York — now he wants the U.S.," writes another.

This isn't your common, ordinary "Dionne Warwick for Pope" type graffiti. This stuff has class. Richard Nixon graffiti covers many walls — and most of it is better left there. An occasional uncomplimentary reference to Lyndon Johnson has survived from the mid-60's. And a University of Nebraska-Lincoln study carrel carries this simple message: "Dumb Ukrainians!" Your guess is as good as mine.

Poem Of Praise

Lincoln, despite a preponderance of uncomplimentary references to the climate, has inspired at least one citizen to poetry: "Oh royal, loyal Lincolnland/I finally began to understand/its reason for being is clear to see/Lincoln is built for you and me."

John Neihardt didn't start that way, but it rhymes, doesn't it?

The Central Intelligence Agency and armed forces don't fare nearly as well.

"The CIA knows you're here," reads one bathroom scrawl.

"U.S. Army (Navy, Marines, Air Force, too): For those who don't have the guts to make it on their own initiative."

And: "ROTC men don't know what they are giving up for life in the military. I'll tell you what they're giving up — they're giving up their FREEDOM!"

Writer Hurt

Maybe graffiti like that inspired one wall writer to this simple, neatly lettered message: "Oh, the hypocrisy of the world."

An optimist writes, "FOOD FOR THOUGHT;"

May 1, 1975, is the first day in several years that there was no war anywhere in the world."

A pessimist responds, "U.S. troops (are) in Northern Ireland, the Middle East, Vietnam, Cambodia. Think again."

A thinker, apparently trying to make the best of things, pencils in underneath, "WAR IS GOOD."

Marijuana legislation comes under fire, too. Witness this exchange of graffiti on a local wall: "I like to smoke dope. So does a majority of our generation. Let's get it legalized."

"You're crazy."

"You're uninformed."

"I enjoy smoking also. I don't think a majority does, though. But I feel if done in the privacy of your own home, it's feasible to allow legalization."

Dope Won Out

Thank you, Howard K. Smith. Incidentally, dope won in extra innings, 5-2.

Occasionally, someone (an English teacher, perhaps) sees a graffiti-filled wall, bemoans the human condition and tries to spur man on to greater things.

"Let's get some CREATIVITY on this wall!" wrote someone in disgust.

"What is creativity?" scrawls a philosopher.

A line directs attention to a childish drawing. It vaguely resembles a deer.

Something For Everyone Pop Music's Story In 1975

By BRUCE MEYER

United Press International

If you were willing to go out of your way to looking for directions, you could likely dig up a trend or two in 1975's pop music.

Disco, for example. Disco music was hot, no denying it. And there was a movement toward big arrangements — the Phil Spector "wall-of-sound" of the early 60's was popular — in much the same manner as art deco.

But while 1975 saw more good music than any other year of the half-finished decade, it remained a pretty muddled year. There was something for just about everyone — which, in its own way, wasn't so bad at all.

Elton John On Top

Elton John had everything going his way in 1975 — and if his music began sounding a bit monotonous, it didn't seem to make that much difference to the record-buying public. Elton went 100% Hollywood and it did nothing but sell him more records than ever.

On the other hand, Elton made sure his own perhaps fleeting stardom wasn't the only thing providing for his old age. He signed up a genuine has-been to his rocket records label — and provided the world with Neil Sedaka, Volume Two, the first genuine, full-blown comeback seen in years.

Almost in spite of a huge ad campaign lavished on him, Bruce Springsteen finally emerged from the back alleys of Jersey as a brilliant performer with a unique and impressive new synthesis of pop forms. Springsteen may not be the entire future of rock, but — again, in spite of the type — he would seem to represent a healthy chunk of it.

Jazz came off the back burner at last in 1975 — in what must be viewed as one of the more important "trends" of the year. Riding on the delicate keyboards of Chick Corea and Herbie Hancock and the horns of Chuck Mangione and Tom Scott, jazz proved itself a viable commercial force for the first time in years. Rock 'n' roll didn't die in 1975 — but it sure had to move over.

Country On Skids

Nashville-oriented country continued to slide downhill toward Las Vegas (John Denver Country Artist of the Year, indeed). But the "progressive" and "traditional" wings of the country scene are looking better and better. Three cheers for Dolly Parton, Waylon Jennings and friends.

The discotheques, as noted before, were an important part of the music scene in 1975. They fell into that role because there was a gap to be filled — and if sterile funk was the only thing available to fill it, the artists who jumped on the bandwagon can hardly be blamed.

As for genuine rhythm and blues, disco sounds left the field wide open for the veterans and those old pros, the Spinners, looked — and sounded — great. Slick, sure, but they, at least, haven't forgotten what "soul" is about.

Veterans On Job

And speaking of veterans, some of the very best rock of the year came from a couple of bands with their roots 'way back in the stone age 60's —

Fleetwood Mac and the Jefferson Starship. Bob Dylan emerged from his long hibernation in 1974 — and made it clear in '75 that he has no intention of retreating from the public eye in the near future.

After several years of decidedly second-rate exports, Britain provided the world with some innovative music again in the form of 10CC and Supertramp. And if '75 hardly saw a replay of the British invasion, it was nice to see a couple of good old-fashioned happy-time "bubblegum" groups — the Bay City Rollers and the Sweet — turn up as well.

Forecasting the future of pop music is an art considerably less precise than charting the whims of weather and the economy, but here goes:

— Quality single records, as opposed to albums, returned to the scene during the past year and will continue to have an important effect on the music industry.

— Arrangements using many instruments and lavish studio overdubbing, rather than simple guitar-and-drums, are popular and will be getting more so, for a while.

— The disco trend, though not necessarily the renewed interest in dancing, will last just long enough for a lot of people to lose a lot of money, then subside once again into semi-obscure.

— Rhythmic pop-jazz will grow in importance as millions of former rock 'n' rollers abruptly decide they are too old to act like teenagers and look for more sophisticated, more sedentary forms of music.

Why Should She Pay For Sister's Mistake?

DEAR ABBY: I am a 15-year-old girl. You see, my sister got pregnant when she was 16, and she had an abortion. Now, all I hear from my parents is, "We are not going to take off your what we took off your sister!"

Abby, I am not my sister. I would like to be able to have company over to the house, but my parents won't allow it. If a boy happens to come over, they tell me if I don't send him away, they will.

I don't want to have to sneak and have the boys come to my girl friend's house to see me, but this is the only way I can ever see a guy. I have never given my parents a reason to distrust me, but they do.

Isn't there some way I can convince them that I won't do like my sister did?

OVERPROTECTED

DEAR OVER: Your problem is one that many girls have, and it is grossly unfair. Your parents should not punish you for what your sister did.

Do not sneak. If you do and are caught, they will have good reason to deny you company.

DEAR ABBY: My husband died of a heart attack two months ago. He was only 39. He knew he had a heart condition because he had two "warnings" last year.

My husband told me that he wanted a simple funeral service and then cremation.

None of his family ever said yea or nay about their opinion of his wishes until I tried to make the arrangements — then I got static from all sides about what "we" want.

I tried to carry out my husband's wishes without getting into a big fight with his mother and father, but it wasn't easy.

The point I am trying to make, Abby, is this: Please tell your readers to put such wishes in writing. My husband didn't. And it sure was rough for me.

WIDOW DEAR WIDOW: Although death is one of the few certainties in life, too few people are sufficiently realistic to prepare for it. Perhaps your letter will jar a few into action.

DEAR ABBY: Is there a certain age limit when a woman should stop bearing children?

I'm quite concerned about this because my 41-year-old mother who is expecting has been subjected to some very rude and cruel remarks, such as, "Didn't you know that abortions were legal now?" and, "It must have been an accident. Surely you didn't want a child at your age!"

What's wrong with having another baby after the others are grown? My mother was very happy at the prospects of having another child until people started cutting her down.

Please comment.

HURT DAUGHTER

DEAR HURT: The good Lord and Nature determine the child-bearing years. And when a woman is "too old" to bear a child, she won't be able to.

This double-dummy problem was composed many years ago by the late Sidney Lenz. The object is to make Seven Hearts against the queen of clubs lead. Best defense is assumed and, of course, declarer sees all 52 cards.

Win the queen of clubs with the king, discarding a diamond, and continue with the ace of clubs. Then:

1. If East ruffs, overruff, cash the ace of spades and continue with the queen through West's king. He must play the king of spades on this trick or the next one, whereupon you ruff in dummy and finesse the ten of trumps to score the rest of the tricks.

2. If East discards a spade on the ace of clubs, trump it, play the A-Q of spades as before, and take a trump finesse. Then cash your remaining spade or spades, enter dummy with a diamond to the king and ruff another club, reducing your hand to the A-K-J of trumps and nine of diamonds. Cross to dummy with a diamond to the ace, lead anything at all and East's Q-7-6 of trumps succumb to your A-K-J.

3. If East discards a diamond on the ace of clubs, discard your nine of spades and take a trump finesse. Then enter dummy with a diamond and repeat the trump finesse. After you cash the A-K of trumps, this becomes the position:

Black History Forgotten In Dusty Attics

By TOM COOK
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Omaha — Blacks have come a long way in the last 20 years of American history — from the backseats of buses into the mainstream of a nation they helped build.

Bertha Calloway of Omaha believes it's time the history of black Americans is rescued from the obscurity of 200 years of bigotry and prejudice.

"You may look through a whole box of memorabilia and find one thing that helps you piece black history together," she said. "Most of our black history is scattered all around the country in attics, garages, trunks and basements."

As director of the Great Plains Black Museum, which will open officially Feb. 6, Mrs. Calloway has been searching basements and archives since November to find and save black heritage.

Importance Not Realized

The black community has no tradition of donating things to museums, Mrs. Calloway said, and blacks often don't realize the historical importance of articles in their possession.

"You have to have a lot of patience in this thing," she said.

Lois McMorris, researcher-artist for the museum, said people — especially in Omaha's North Side — are beginning to understand the importance of the museum.

"In the past maybe they have taken something to a museum and were told 'We don't want that stuff.'"

Ms. McMorris said the black historical role has been woven out of America's story, and blacks and whites aren't aware of the contributions blacks have made.

"It's important we know those historical contributions. To know that we're not a race of nothing — that we're people. It's time it's brought out. I want my daughter to know," she said.

Although the museum is interested in the past of blacks on the Great Plains, Ms. McMorris said the contemporary contribution of the project is significant.

"Not only with the museum are we focusing on bringing out our heritage, but also what we can do in the black community to get it together," she said.

Mrs. Calloway said the museum at 2213 Lake St. will be of interest to all Americans.

Not Blacks Only

"Anyone can be a member of the museum," she said. "It's not just for blacks, but is an important part of the Bicentennial. This is helping fit all our history together."

Besides a staff of 15 researchers, Mrs. Calloway says she has had increasing support from the community in searching out pieces of black history.

"We have about five people a week come in looking for jobs to help in this project," she said. "And if people don't know about us, I kidnap them and make them know about us."

Retired Meatpacker

One of those she "kidnapped" is John Jackson, 2612 Bristol, who is a retired Omaha meatpacker.

"Boy, she got me in there and really talked to me," he said. "I'm gonna give her this history stuff because she's my friend and I'm not gonna keep it."

When she went to his home to pick up some black periodicals and to look at a wooden, non-electric ice box he agreed to contribute, Mrs. Calloway's considerable persuasive talents were evident.

She spotted a list of contributors to an Omaha church drive in the early 1900's among Jackson's papers and joked him until he agreed to let her take it.

She also asked for other historical items of sentimental value to Jackson, and went away satisfied with a stern, "I'll think about it."

Regional In Scope

Although most of her efforts have been directed at Omaha's North Side, Mrs. Calloway said the museum is regional in scope including the states of Kansas, Colorado, both Dakotas and Iowa.

She also hopes to make contacts in Lincoln to help preserve the history of the black community in Lancaster County.

"This isn't an antique collection. We want things dealing with neighborhoods — anything no matter what it is that they know the history of, even if they only know it belonged to their grandparents."

Mrs. Calloway has collected black history for 15 years and founded the Negro Historical Society of Nebraska in 1962.

Bicentennial Grant

The Black Museum was made possible by a one-year, $100,000 grant from the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration, and many items donated by Mrs. Calloway.

Items and writings already collected are from black Civil War veterans who homesteaded in Nebraska, black cowboys, Buffalo Soldiers who rescued their fellow white cavalry troops from Indian attack after Wounded Knee and the black elite who managed to put their children through college.

Mrs. Calloway said a membership drive in February will help raise funds to keep the museum alive. But her resolution is one of the most important items the museum has.

"I've worked for this for 15 years and this will always be here, even if there is only one person to run it."

Sheep Survives 31-Day Captivity

Ravenna — A sheep belonging to Gordon Urwiler of Ravenna has survived 31 days of captivity in a snowdrift. The animal left 11 dead comrades behind. After the Thanksgiving blizzard, a flock of 12 sheep on the Urwiler farm was missing. The Urwilers surmised the surviving sheep, which took refuge in a drift near a wooden shelter, dined on wooden boards and snow during the ordeal.

Kinghorn To Direct Southeast Office

Auburn — Bob Kinghorn, 31, is the new director of the Southeast Nebraska Office of Mental Retardation in Auburn. He replaces Russ Schluchting who has gone to Hayes, Kan., for college graduate work. A native of Auburn, Kinghorn was graduated from Peru State College in 1968 and has worked for SENOMR since 1973.

Last Two Herzberg Stores Sold

Omaha (AP) — Herzberg's has sold its two remaining women's fashion stores in Omaha, and the 66-year-old firm now is out of the retail business, according to Richard Goldman, president. The stores at the Crossroads and Montclair shopping centers have been bought by Javell, Inc., another Omaha-based fashion chain, he said. Herzberg's at one time operated four Omaha stores.

Building Total Down At Ogallala

Ogallala — Construction was down in Ogallala the past year, totaling $1,932,323 compared to $3,466,778 for 1974, an all-time record. The 1975 figures include 30 new homes, one apartment house and one duplex among residential projects. Commercial construction was topped by the $400,000 Berean Fundamental Church.

National Legion Head To Speak

Columbus — Harry G. Wiles of Topeka, Kan., national commander of the American Legion, will headline the list of speakers at the annual mid-year conference of the Nebraska American Legion in Columbus Jan. 10-11. He is scheduled to address the Sunday banquet gathering. Other due to speak include Daniel O'Connor of New York, chairman of the Legion's National Americanism Commission, and Lancaster County Juvenile Court Judge W.W. Nuernberger.

Bellevue Man Is Fined $100 For Gambling

Omaha (AP) — A 46-year-old Bellevue man pleaded guilty to one count of gambling and was fined $100 in Omaha Municipal Court Wednesday.

Court records showed that Judge Paul Hickman fined James J. Dunham after Dunham pleaded guilty to placing a bet on a sporting event with a bookie.

Police said he turned himself in to police vice squad officers Wednesday. He was charged with one gambling count.

Dunham's arrest was the latest of several which began Monday following a two-county gambling investigation.

Longtime OPPD S. Omaha Plant Is Closed Down

Omaha (AP) — The Omaha Public Power District's South Omaha plant is out of operation, after serving the public since 1938.

Officials turned off a valve Wednesday, cutting the supply of oil to the plant's boilers and thus stopping operations at the plant.

When the plant was built, it was designed to burn oil or natural gas. In recent years, however, the price of oil has climbed and the supply of natural gas to power stations is being cut off.

Over the years, OPPD has moved away from oil and gas burning units, its two large plants now use coal or nuclear fuel.

River Planning Symposium Set

A symposium on the planning and use of Nebraska's rivers and related land resources will be held Feb. 7, according to the Nebraska Wildlife Federation.

The symposium will be held at the Radisson-Cornhusker Hotel in Lincoln.

Entitled "At the River's Edge," the conference will include speakers, films and discussions on legal, hydrologic and humanistic definition of a river system, impact on wildlife and other public values, floodplain planning, and the economic impact of river plans.

20 Officers Take 3 Hours To Control Omaha Party

Omaha (AP) — Twenty police officers were called in about midnight Wednesday to halt a disturbance at the Granada Royale Hotel.

Police said firemen were called to the scene first when celebrants set off fire alarms and it took about 20 patrolmen about three hours to halt the disturbance.

Three persons, including a policeman and two celebrants, were treated at a hospital and released. Six persons were arrested.

Police said that the celebrants had rented rooms at the hotel and apparently the problem began when non-registered persons tried to come to the parties in progress.

Police said that furniture, plants and other pieces from the rooms were tossed over balconies to the main floor.

Two Die In New Year's Traffic

Two persons died on Nebraska highways New Year's Day, equaling the state's fatality toll on Jan. 1, 1975.

The body of Bennett C. Enge, 27, of David City was recovered about 12:30 p.m. Thursday by scuba divers from icy waters along Highway 15 south of Schuyler.

Butler County Sheriff Leo Meister of David City said Enge was a passenger in a southbound car driven by Katherine Koza, 19, of rural Bruno, which left the highway, went through a guard rail, flipped over and landed upside down in a water-filled stream. Time of the accident was 2:15 a.m.

Passing motorists called the Schuyler Rescue Squad and the car was pulled out of the water. Miss Koza, who spent about 45 minutes pinned inside the car while it was in the water, was rescued after workers took the steering wheel apart to release her.

The sheriff said there was apparently just enough air space in the overturned car to keep Miss Koza alive. She was treated and released from a Schuyler hospital.

Scuba divers from the Fremont Fire Department located Enge's body close to where the car went through the ice on the stream.

The bridge where the mishap occurred is about a mile south of the Platte River bridge.

Enge was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Enge of David City.

Mike Clyde, 19, of Superior, was killed early Thursday in a two-car accident about three miles east of Hardy on Highway 8, authorities said.

He was a passenger in a car driven by Mike Fenimore, 20, of Superior, when it was struck from the rear by a car driven by Steve Higer, 18, also of Superior.

Officers said the Fenimore car caught fire, apparently when the gasoline tank exploded.

Neither of the drivers was seriously hurt.

Black History Forgotten In Dusty Attics

Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Omaha — Blacks have come a long way in the last 20 years of American history — from the backseats of buses into the mainstream of a nation they helped build.

Bertha Calloway of Omaha believes it's time the history of black Americans is rescued from the obscurity of 200 years of bigotry and prejudice.

"You may look through a whole box of memorabilia and find one thing that helps you piece black history together," she said. "Most of our black history is scattered all around the country in attics, garages, trunks and basements."

As director of the Great Plains Black Museum, which will open officially Feb. 8, Mrs. Calloway has been searching basements and archives since November to find and save black heritage.

Importance Not Realized

The black community has no tradition of donating things to museums, Mrs. Calloway said, and blacks often don't realize the historical importance of articles in their possession.

Bellevue Man Is Fined $100 For Gambling

Omaha (AP) — A 46-year-old Bellevue man pleaded guilty to one count of gambling and was fined $100 in Omaha Municipal Court Wednesday.

Court records showed that Judge Paul Hickman fined James J. Dunham after Dunham pleaded guilty to placing a bet on a sporting event with a bookie.

Police said he turned himself in to police vice squad officers Wednesday. He was charged with one gambling count.

Dunham's arrest was the latest of several which began Monday following a two-county gambling investigation.

Longtime OPPD S. Omaha Plant Is Closed Down

Omaha (AP) — The Omaha Public Power District's South Omaha plant is out of operation, after serving the public since 1938.

Officials turned off a valve Wednesday, cutting the supply of oil to the plant's boilers and thus stopping operations at the plant.

When the plant was built, it was designed to burn oil or natural gas. In recent years, however, the price of oil has climbed and the supply of natural gas to power stations is being cut off.

Over the years, OPPD has moved away from oil and gas burning units; its two large plants now use coal or nuclear fuel.

River Planning Symposium Set

A symposium on the planning and use of Nebraska's rivers and related land resources will be held Feb. 7, according to the Nebraska Wildlife Federation.

The symposium will be held at the Radisson-Cornhusker Hotel in Lincoln.

Entitled "At the River's Edge," the conference will include speakers, films and discussions on legal, hydrologic and humanistic definition of a river system; impact on wildlife and other public values; floodplain planning; and the economic impact of river plans.

20 Officers Take 3 Hours To Control Omaha Party

Omaha (AP) — Twenty police officers were called in about midnight Wednesday to halt a disturbance at the Granada Royale Homotel.

Police said firemen were called to the scene first when celebrants set off fire alarms and it took about 20 patrolmen about three hours to halt the disturbance.

Three persons, including a policeman and two celebrants, were treated at a hospital and released. Six persons were arrested.

Police said that the celebrants had rented rooms at the homotel and apparently the problem began when non-registered persons tried to come to the parties in progress.

Police said that furniture, plants and other pieces from the rooms were tossed over balconies to the main floor.

Power Districts, Environmentalists Disagree On 20-Mile Spacing Of Plants

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

"Energy and the environment — together we can work it out," Madison Avenue assures the nation on behalf of the energy industry.

In practice, though, a major conflict in Nebraska between power suppliers and clean air advocates shows no signs of a quick or amiable solution.

The outcome will determine how clean the air will remain in Nebraska.

The disagreement centers on the State Department of Environmental Control's (DEC) two-year-old regulation which sets out minimum spacing requirements for power generation stations.

Called the "20-mile rule," the regulation states that no plant emitting one ton per hour or more of sulfur dioxide or ash into the air can be built within 20 miles of another plant emitting a like amount.

Prevent Deterioration

The rule's purpose is to prevent significant deterioration of air quality in clean air regions. Air pollution standards limit the amount of pollutants a single stack can emit, but the 20-mile rule is intended to prevent construction of a group of plants which individually meet performance standards but collectively dirty the air.

The rule's greatest impact is felt by the power districts.

DEC officials have cleared the way for construction of the 650-megawatt Gentleman Power Station near Sutherland by Nebraska Public Power District and a similar plant at Nebraska City being built by Omaha Public Power District.

Both plants will burn low-sulfur coal to meet standards for sulfur dioxide emissions and will install electrostatic precipitators to remove ash from stack gases.

Second Plants Planned

For each plant the 20-mile rule poses no problem. However, NPPD and OPPD plan to build twin generation units at each location later.

By grouping the power units at a single location, the districts can save money by using many of the same personnel and the same railroad track for coal deliveries.

The 20-mile rule would keep the power districts from building the second units at both Nebraska City and Sutherland, unless the districts were willing to install the controversial "scrubbers" to remove sulfur dioxide gases from the second plant's emissions.

Both power districts have resisted suggestions that scrubbers be installed on any of their plants because they say scrubbers are inefficient, unreliable and costly.

Short of installing the scrubbers, the only way the second units will ever be built is if the 20-mile rule is altered.

When the DEC first proposed the rule in 1973, the radius was 30 miles. Protests from the power districts succeeded in getting that reduced to 20 miles.

Now, the power districts are asking that the 20-mile rule be dropped altogether.

At its last meeting the State Environmental Control Council, the 16-member citizen group which determines what the regulations will be, considered increasing the limit from one to two tons per hour.

That change apparently won't solve the power districts' dilemma, and the council rejected it.

May Be Low

Gene Robinson, DEC air pollution chief, said that two stations at Sutherland could emit 3.25 tons of sulfur dioxide per hour. That figure was based on NPPD estimates which may in reality be too low.

Robinson said an NPPD study indicated the saving realized by locating a second unit at the Sutherland site would outweigh the added cost of installing a scrubber.

Eric Sloth, NPPD director of environmental affairs, said the 20-mile rule satisfies aesthetic considerations but does nothing to protect public health and welfare.

In recommending the rule be abolished, Sloth said it "provides no additional protection to the people of Nebraska" and in fact is "detrimental" to the public by forcing up costs.

However, it has been pointed out that Wyoming has sulfur dioxide limits six times more stringent than Nebraska. Colorado and New Mexico likewise have more stringent sulfur dioxide standards.

There appears to be considerable support for eliminating the 20-mile rule, while environmentalists oppose the change.

"Never Really Palatable" DEC Director Dan Drain has said the rule "was never really palatable to me."

Robert Cox, a council member from Gering, moved that the 20-mile rule be dropped altogether. Action on his motion was postponed, after it was pointed out that the council's agenda did not include a proposal to drop the rule.

To have acted would have violated the state's open meetings law.

Instead, the council directed Robinson to devise a more flexible alternative to the 20-mile rule and present it to the council for consideration in March.

As yet, Robinson said he has not devised a solution.

He called it a "real problem" to devise a sufficiently flexible formula for recognizing the differences in locations while keeping it simple.

Funeral Set For Trenton Youth Killed In Apparent Gun Accident

Trenton — Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Friday at the United Methodist Church here for Charles Brown, 19, victim of a shooting Monday.

Hitchcock County Attorney Marvin Steinke said the death was apparently accidental.

The youth was killed instantly when he was shot in the chest with a .410 shotgun while with two other boys, aged 12 and 10, near the Republican River south of Trenton, according to the county attorney. Steinke said none of the three boys were related.

Brown is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brown; a brother, Victor; and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hovey, all of Trenton.

McCurdy said.

of bad taste," said Pogge, a real estate salesman. "I thought it was ghoulish. Presumably we are all to hurry up and die in order to take advantage of this year-end bargain."

McCurdy says he has been given the cold shoulder by other Council Bluffs funeral directors since he began advertising prices last summer.

Then he noted the average funeral cost in Iowa is more than $1,200. He offered a "complete funeral including a metal casket" for $495. He advertises 12 funeral services for less than $995.

"I want to help people. I don't want them to go out owing a lot of money," he said.

"I try to tailor a funeral according to what they can spend. If they come in with $400 or $500, I say, 'This is what I can give you.'"

McCurdy says he cuts his costs
"by doing everything myself."
"I have taken care of people for $200 and dug the grave myself," he said.

"This has always been my dream, to do what I am doing.
This is what I think I can give to society. I am doing everything myself in the public benefit.
What it amounts to is that I am

Police said Freddie Drummond was arrested Tuesday night after the shooting at the home of Brenda Bristol.

Deputy County Atty. Edward Wain charged Drummond with shooting Miss Bristol's cousin, Quenton Chatman, 28, of Los Angeles.

Chatman was shot once in the face with a small-caliber pistol, police said. He was treated at a hospital and released.

Police said Miss Bristol and Chatman had prepared a birthday cake for their grandmother when Drummond became upset because they would not let him have any cake.

During the Christmas period the $100 discount just smacked of bad taste," said Pogge, a real estate salesman. "I thought it was ghoulis. Presumably we are all to hurry up and die in order to take advantage of this year-end bargain."

McCurdy says he has been given the cold shoulder by other Council Bluffs funeral directors since he began advertising prices last summer.

Then he noted the average funeral cost in Iowa is more than $1,200. He offered a "complete funeral including a metal casket" for $495. He advertises 12 funeral services for less than $995.

"I want to help people. I don't want them to go out owing a lot of money," he said.

"I try to tailor a funeral according to what they can spend. If they come in with $400 or $500, I say, 'This is what I can give you.'"

McCurdy says he cuts his costs "by doing everything myself."

"I have taken care of people for $200 and dug the grave myself," he said.

"This has always been my dream, to do what I am doing. This is what I think I can give to society. I am doing everything myself in the public benefit. What it amounts to is that I am not afraid of hard work."

Iowa Youth Killed

Patterson, Iowa (UPI) — Matt E. Stout, 17, of rural Patterson was killed when his go-cart collided with a pickup truck at a Madison County road intersection.

Omaha Man Is Charged

Omaha (AP) — A 20-year-old man has been charged with shooting with intent to kill, wound or maim after an argument over a birthday cake.

Police said Freddie Drummond was arrested Tuesday night after the shooting at the home of Brenda Bristol.

Deputy County Atty. Edward Warin charged Drummond with shooting Miss Bristol's cousin, Quenton Chatman, 29, of Los Angeles.

Chatman was shot once in the face with a small-caliber pistol, police said. He was treated at a hospital and released.

Police said Miss Bristol and Chatman had prepared a birthday cake for their grandmother when Drummond became upset because they would not let him have any cake.

Lincoln Public Schools Given Mini-Grants

Two $500 mini-grants have been awarded to the Lincoln Public Schools under Title III of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act, Nebraska Education Commissioner Anne Campbell announced Friday.

Title III federal funds, channeled through the State Education Department, pay for developing innovative programs and supplementary educational centers and services.

The Lincoln grants will be used for two projects, "Our Living Nebraska: Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow," and "Sharing Cultures Project."

They are one-year programs. The Title III State Advisory Council reviewed 42 mini-grant applications and recommended 21 for approval. Recipients are in 15 Nebraska communities and one educational service unit.

Other schools selected to receive grants for one-year projects include the Waverly Public Schools, "Introducing Career Education Through a Child's Senses," $500; and three in the Crete Public Schools: "Outdoor Education for the Handicapped," $365; "Peer Teaching Using Media Center Resources," $500; "Crete Students for Science," $500.

Also approved for grants were:

- Educational Service Unit 5, Beatrice, "Identifying the Exceptional," $500.
- Bellevue Public Schools, "Sense of Place," $500.
- Bladen Public Schools, "Store

Curtis Opposes Disclosure

Omaha (AP) — Sen. Carl T. Curtis of Nebraska opposes the suggestion that federal officials should disclose their personal financial affairs.

The Nebraska senator, interviewed in the current issue of U. S. News & World Report, said such disclosures "serve no purpose."

"Someone may be of very modest means," he said. "They might have quite a few debts. Forced disclosure would subject them to ridicule and the charge they were a failure."

On the other hand, he said, "disclosure by people of considerable wealth would invite opposition and stir up prejudice against them. It would keep many well-qualified, public-spirited people from serving in public offices."

Logan Hotel In Omaha Is Sold

Omaha (AP) — The Logan Hotel near downtown Omaha will remain an apartment building, said the president of a finance company which bought the structure for $175,000 Wednesday.

The price apparently is half what the building sold for six years ago.

Darrell Anderson, president of American Savings Co., said the total purchase price was $225,000, including $50,000 for fixtures and furnishings.

The Douglas County treasurer's office said $76,952.85 in back taxes on the property were paid Wednesday.

Police Chief Named

Muscatine, Iowa (UPI) — William Brendel, a 22-year veteran of the police force, was named acting police chief by Mayor-elect Evelyn Schauland.

San Juan — The treasure island of Puerto Rico is roughly oblong: 100 miles long, 35 miles wide. A range of mountains divides it lengthwise.

The northeast trade winds bring a daily tropical shower — a clatter of wind in the coco palms followed by a drenching down-pour. It lasts about 20 minutes. The sun comes out and the greenery flashes a million water diamonds.

The Spanish built Old San Juan on an island. Modern San Juan spills off on the mainland. The old city is on a finger of land, two-and-a-half miles long and a half mile wide, a breakwater across the Atlantic wash to form the mainland harbor.

They surrounded it with the most massive fortifications in the New World.

Energetic Sir Francis Drake brought a fleet of 27 ships to Puerto Rico in 1595. His cannon shots bounced off the 20-foot-thick walls like ping pong balls.

It was a tidy town of breezy mansions and blue glazed brick streets. Built-in yellow fever kept the population equal to the space available. Churches tolled their bells for those who succumbed.

Naturally this is rich country for the tourist. Old San Juan is rebuilding its tottering mansions for a golden tide the original owners never dreamed of.

It was a close thing. In one burst of air-conditioned insanity — protected by the title of "modern thinking" — the citizens started tearing down the Spanish walls.

Fortunately, they ran out of money and energy before they could finish.

Even so, most of the original houses were walled into slums. Chickens ran loose in noble courtyards. Convents were turned into warehouses. Patios and colonnades were destroyed. Plate-glass show stores were cut into street floors of elegant homes.

In a few years, the local merchants did more damage to San Juan than English, Dutch and Borinquen Indians did in 300 years of planned determination.

The saviors of San Juan were a strange breed: A sunburned fellow in an aloha shirt with a camera slung around his neck saying:

"Stand over against that old building. That'll make a heck of a good picture."

Today, Old San Juan has been declared an historical zone. Owners can't lay a finger on a building without a permit from the Institute of Puerto Rican Culture.

An owner of one of the old buildings can get government finance and an excellent tax rebate if he will remodel it back to the original.

There's a sort of fascinating detective work finding the original structure beneath the slum walls. A historian who deals in antiques in a restored mansion showed me some of it.

You tap around with a hammer until you find where beams and pillars are hidden under the newer walls.

One thing, we know the pattern of these houses.

You see the Spanish families built for all the family Aunts, uncles, grandparents — everybody lived in them.

The ground floor was always built with stables along the sides for the horses. There was a central patio and all the rooms on the upper levels ran around it.

The front rooms on the first upper floor were for living rooms and for the family. The dining room and kitchen were toward the back. When you know this, you know what to look for.

You can't pull down the forts short of dynamite. And nobody has burned churches since 1625 when the Dutch felt that such Popish buildings were for the torch.

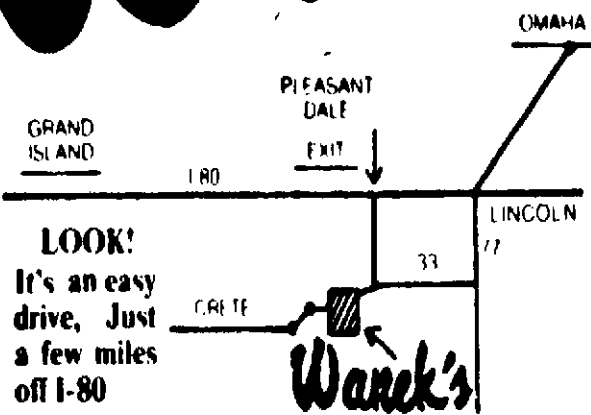

The tourists focus on all this gorgeous history. Set cameras at 111 and 200th of a second because of water reflection.

If you want to look at it that way Eastman Kodak saved the city.

San Juan — The treasure island of Puerto Rico is roughly oblong: 100 miles long, 35 miles wide. A range of mountains divides it lengthwise. The northeast trade winds bring a daily tropical shower — a clatter of wind in the coco palms followed by a drenching down-pour. It lasts about 20 minutes. The sun comes out and the greenery flashes a million water diamonds.

The Spanish built Old San Juan on an island. Modern San Juan spills off on the mainland. The old city is on a finger of land, two-and-a-half miles long and a half mile wide, a breakwater across the Atlantic wash to form the mainland harbor.

They surrounded it with the most massive fortifications in the New World.

Energetic Sir Francis Drake brought a fleet of 27 ships to Puerto Rico in 1595. His cannon shots bounced off the 20-foot-thick walls like ping pong balls.

It was a tidy town of breezy mansions and blue glazed brick streets. Built-in yellow fever kept the population equal to the space available. Churches tolled their bells for those who succumbed.

Naturally this is rich country for the tourist. Old San Juan is rebuilding its tottering mansions for a golden tide the original owners never dreamed of.

It was a close thing. In one burst of air-conditioned insanity — protected by the title of "modern thinking" — the citizens started tearing down the Spanish walls.

Fortunately, they ran out of money and energy before they could finish.

Even so, most of the original houses were walled into slums. Chickens ran loose in noble courtyards. Convents were turned into warehouses. Patios and colonnades were destroyed. Plate-glass show stores were cut into street floors of elegant homes.

In a few years, the local merchants did more damage to San Juan than English, Dutch and Borinquen Indians did in 300 years of planned determination.

The saviors of San Juan were a strange breed: A sunburned fellow in an aloha shirt with a camera slung around his neck saying:

Today, Old San Juan has been declared an historical zone. Owners can't lay a finger on a building without a permit from the Institute of Puerto Rican Culture.

An owner of one of the old buildings can get government finance and an excellent tax rebate if he will remodel it back to the original.

There's a sort of fascinating detective work finding the original structure beneath the slum walls. A historian who deals in antiques in a restored mansion showed me some of it.

"You tap around with a hammer until you find where beams and pillars are hidden under the newer walls.

"One thing, we know the pattern of these houses.

"You see the Spanish families built for all the family. Aunts, uncles, grandparents — everybody lived in them.

"The ground floor was always built with stables along the sides for the horses. There was a central patio and all the rooms on the upper levels ran around it.

"The front rooms on the first upper floor were for living rooms and for the family. The dining room and kitchen were toward the back. When you know this, you know what to look for."

You can't pull down the forts short of dynamite. And nobody has burned churches since 1625 when the Dutch felt that such Popish buildings were for the torch.

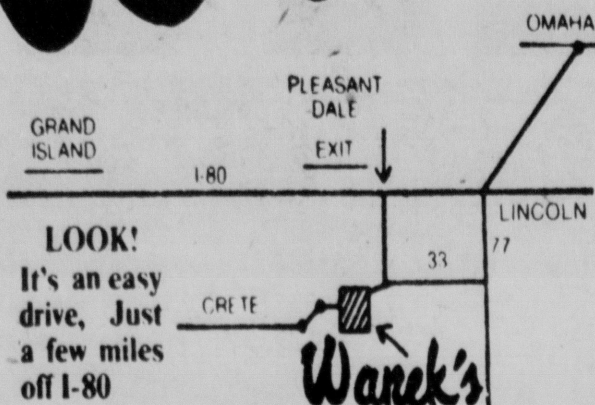

The tourists focus on all this gorgeous history. (Set cameras at f.11 and 200th of a second because of water reflection.) If you want to look at it that way, Eastman Kodak saved the city.

Sooners Make Bid For National Title

Kansans Topple Wesleyan

Other Thursday scores included Marymount defeating Panhandle State, 88-67; Emporia State downing Southwestern 91-66; and host Friends topping Ottawa, 75-58.

Coach Irv Peterson's Plainsmen will meet Ottawa in a consolation bracket game at 4 p.m. Friday. If Wesleyan wins, it will compete for fifth place at 4 p.m. on Saturday.

The Plainsmen, who dropped their seventh game in eight outings, trailed early at 14-4 with 15:42 left before intermission.

Then senior Bob Knollenberg and junior Angelo Lilly started hitting and Wesleyan pulled within 25-24 with 9:55 remaining before halftime.

But the Wichita school then drew away to a 62-39 halftime lead and all but sealed their sixth victory in 11 attempts.

The Kansans outscored NWU, 47-43 in the second half and won on fine field goal shooting. They hit 47 of 78 field goal attempts for 60 per cent.

NWU, which hit just 47 per cent in the first half, finished with a 41 percentage on 36 of 88 completions.

The Plainsmen were paced by Lilly and Mark Simmerman, who each hit 13 points, and 12 points each from Larry Abel, Knollenberg and Kim Veerhusen.

The Jets, coached by David Skinner, were led by Richard Grant, who took game-high scoring honors with 24 points; Mike Marshall with 22 points, 14 from Charles McClain and 10 each from Ted Bayer and Jeff Campbell.

Each team committed 15 personal fouls.

Oklahoma's Joe Washington is in the driver's seat but with some extra passengers from Michigan during Thursday night's Orange Bowl battle for the national college title.

Crown Of Roses Fits UCLA's Sciarra

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — "John Sciarra brought us to the Rose Bowl and he's the man who brought us through it to victory," UCLA's delectably happy Dick Vermeil said.

"He's a great football player. I'll be damned if there are seven better college players in the country as the Hestman Trophy voting indicated."

Vermeil, the former Los Angeles Rams assistant, spoke Thursday night minutes after his greatest coaching triumph, a 23-10 UCLA victory over heavily favored and No. 1 ranked Ohio State in the Rose Bowl.

Sciarra fired two touchdown strikes to Wally Henry in the third quarter and Wendell Tyler streaked 54 yards for a third score in the fourth period.

"We didn't have any pep talks at half time," Vermeil continued. "We knew that we were fortunate to be trailing only 3-0 after our weak offensive performance in the first half."

"But the players also knew that we could win the ball game. We spent the whole intermission making technical adjustments."

Bombastic Woody Hayes, the Ohio State coach, was ungracious in defeat. He refused to show up at the

Rose Bowl interview room and ordered his players and his assistant coaches not to talk to reporters.

Avenging a 41-20 defeat administered by Ohio State at the Los Angeles Coliseum Oct. 4, the Bruins, two-touchdown underdogs at game time, cost the Buckeyes their first national championship since 1968.

Badly outplayed in the first half when they could only register two first downs and 48 total yards, the Bruins took charge of the game at the outset of the second half and never let up.

Sciarra, a second team All America who is considered too small to play quarterback in the pros, put UCLA ahead 9-3 5:55 into the second half on a 14-yard touchdown pass to a speedy Henry. He teamed with his flanker on a 67-yard touchdown bomb at 13:49 of the third quarter.

Sciarra was voted the player of the game.

Tyler sewed up UCLA's tremendous upset when he ran 54 yards for the third UCLA score of the game with 3:42 remaining.

Tyler, wearing a cast on a broken wrist, completely outplayed double Heisman Trophy winner Archie Griffin of Ohio State, rushing for 172 yards on 21 carries, while Griffin was held under 100 yards, gaining 93 on 17 carries. Tyler gained 166 of his yards in the second half.

Tom Klaban kicked a 42-yard field goal at 6:40 of the opening period to put the Buckeyes in front 3-0 and Ohio State totally dominated the rest of the first half, rolling up 174 yards and 11 first downs.

But Klaban's field goal was all the points Ohio State could muster and the Bruins came out a different team in the second half. They took the opening second half kickoff and marched to the Ohio State 16 in nine plays. Brett White then kicked a 33-yard field goal to tie the score at 3-3 with just 2:44 gone in the second half.

After Sciarra's two TD aeriels to Henry, Ohio State came back and went 65 yards in 12 plays with bruising fullback Pete Johnson capping the drive with a three-yard run to make the score 16-10 with 11:46 remaining.

The Buckeyes' Craig Cassidy intercepted a Sciarra pass and his run back, plus a UCLA personal foul penalty on the play, gave Ohio State the ball on the UCLA 35.

Bruins Bowl Over Their Critics

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The UCLA Bruins said they had something to prove in the Rose Bowl New Year's Day—not to themselves but to everyone else.

Coach Dick Vermeil bitterly attacked some critics who said the Bruins did not belong in the Rose Bowl against Ohio State, saying, "I'd like to tell them to go to hell."

Vermeil said the stunning 23-10 upset of the previously unbeaten Buckeyes "was a great, great feeling."

UCLA took an 8-2-1 record into the game against the Buckeyes, who had soundly whipped them 41-30 earlier in the season.

"Some people didn't think much of our chances," said defensive lineman Cliff Frazier, "but we knew we could do it. After we fumbled 11 times against Southern California, some people didn't think we belonged in the Rose Bowl against Ohio State because of what they did to us."

Despite the fumbles, UCLA beat Southern Cal 25-22 to earn the post-season appearance representing the Pacific-8 Conference against the Big Ten champions.

The Bruin offense had the ball for only 9:08 in the first half, but the UCLA defense limited the Buckeyes to a lone field goal and Ohio State led 3-0 at halftime.

"We weren't discouraged at all at half-time," said quarterback John Sciarra, the game's Most Valuable Player with two touchdown passes, both to Wally Henry.

"Look, we were supposed to be 15-point underdogs and the score was 3-0. We knew we could do it. Our defense was doing so well, we knew if the offense could get going, we'd win."

Vermeil said the Bruins made some technical changes in their offense at half-time, using short passes more and making some changes in blocking assignments.

"I didn't say anything at halftime," Vermeil said. "If the team isn't motivated by just being in the Rose Bowl, some words aren't going to make a difference."

Running back Wendell Tyler, playing with a painful wrist which was broken two months ago, carried 21 times for 172 yards, including a 54-yard touchdown run in the fourth quarter.

"The coach didn't say anything to us, we knew we had to get our offense going," Tyler said. Asked about Ohio State, he commented that the Buckeyes "took us lightly. I think."

Vermeil said he was especially happy about the showing of Sciarra, who had 212 yards passing, and the running of Tyler while Ohio State's two-time Heisman Trophy winner, Archie Griffin, was held to 93 yards.

"I said a long, long time ago that John Sciarra brought us to the Rose Bowl, and now he took us through it. He was seventh in the Heisman voting and there's no way there are six football players in the country better than he is. Griffin deserved his awards, but Robn is a super player. And look at what Wendell did, that wrist was really hurting."

The defense held the Buckeyes to their lowest point total of the season and safety Pat Schmidt, who had a key fourth-quarter interception for the Bruins, said it didn't surprise him.

"They played a better team this time, that's all," said Schmidt.

Two plays after Schmidt's pickoff of a Cornelius Greene pass, Tyler broke away on his long run to sew up the Bruin victory.

UCLA's defense was a major question mark and highly criticized at the beginning of the season. But it has steadily improved all year, winding up with outstanding performances against Southern Cal and again in the Rose Bowl when the strong Bruin offense faltered.

"This is a funny defense," said Schmidt. "The longer we're on the field, the tougher the team we play, the more adversity there is, the better we play."

The Bruins were asked who should be No. 1 now that Ohio State has been beaten, and they wistfully said they wished it could be themselves.

"If we hadn't goofed up those two games (a 20-20 tie with Air Force and a 17-13 upset loss to Washington), we'd be on top," said Frazier. "There is no question we have the athletes to be No. 1."

Michigan Falls To Oklahoma

MIAMI (AP) — Reserve wide receiver Billy Brooks, who carried the ball only three times all season, romped 39 yards for a second-period touchdown, and Oklahoma returned to the bowl wars with a 14-6 victory over Michigan in the Orange Bowl Thursday night.

The triumph, coupled with No. 1 ranked Ohio State's loss to UCLA in the Rose Bowl, thrust defending champion Oklahoma into college football's 1975 national championship picture along with Ohio State, Alabama and Arizona State.

Steve Davis, Oklahoma's slick wishbone quarterback, sealed the victory with a 10-yard touchdown around left end on the first play of the final period, capping a four-minute, 68-yard drive.

Meanwhile, the Sooners' brilliant defense withstood a second-half series of fumbles and blanked Michigan until Gordon Bell's two-yard scoring run with 7:06 to go in the fourth quarter. That came one play after Dave Devich recovered a fumble by Oklahoma's Jimmy Culbreath at the Sooners two.

Bell's touchdown prevented what would have been the first shutout suffered by Michigan since 1967. A two-point conversion attempt by freshman quarterback Rick Leach was stopped at the one by All-American middle guard Dewey Selmon.

The third-ranked Oklahoma struck suddenly after being pinned down in its own territory on its two previous possessions by John Anderson's long, towering punts.

Brooks' startling touchdown gallop, 5:07 before halftime, came on the very next play after regular split end Tinker Owens outleaped Michigan safety Dwight Hicks to haul in a 40-yard bomb from Davis that got the Sooners out of another hole.

Brooks, a 6-foot-3, 202-pound senior from Austin, Tex., lined up wide to the left, replacing Owens. Circling to the right, he took a handoff from Davis, avoided a would-be Michigan tackler behind the line of scrimmage and burst into the secondary. He broke into the clear at the 20 and easily scampered the rest of the way into the end zone.

In The Associated Press' final regular season poll, Oklahoma was ranked third, Alabama fourth and Arizona State seventh. All won their bowl games, with Ohio State, Oklahoma and Alabama finishing the year with 11-1 records and Arizona State 12-0.

Second-ranked Texas A&M, fifth-ranked Michigan and sixth-ranked Nebraska all lost in bowl action, and the Texas Aggies also dropped their regular season finale after the last in-season poll.

The Orange Bowl setback ended Michigan's campaign at 8-2-2, the first time the Wolverines have lost more than one game since Coach Bo Schembechler's first season, in 1969.

Because of recruiting violations that brought a two-year probation from the NCAA, Oklahoma was making its first post-season appearance since blanking Penn State in the Sugar Bowl following the 1972 season.

And thanks to the Big Ten's relaxation of its Rose Bowl-only rule, Michigan became the first team from the conference to play in a different bowl game.

Oklahoma's scoring strike came after Michigan's Rob Wood fell short with a 51-yard field goal attempt with 7:19 to play in the first half.

Starting at their 20, the Sooners moved the ball to the 33 before a 14-yard pass from Davis to Owens was wiped out by a holding penalty. That pushed the ball back to the 18, and Jim Littrell picked up three yards before the two long gains.

Wood also was well short with a 43-yard field goal try on the final play of the half.

Michigan's first serious threat, other than Wood's two long-range kicks, came early in the third period when Dan Jilek recovered Culbreath's first fumble at the Oklahoma 26. Seven plays later, substitute quarterback Mark Elzinga's pass was picked off by Sidney Brown in the end zone.

Oklahoma's other bobbles were by Elvis Peacock after the Sooners marched from their 20 to the Michigan 34 and Calvin O'Neal pounced on it for the Wolverines. Two plays failed to gain, and All-Americans Jumbo Elrod and Leroy Selmon sacked Leach for a two-yard loss.

On their second touchdown drive, the Sooners used the running of Davis and Culbreath, who contributed enough to make up for his two second-half fumbles, and overcame a clipping penalty that erased a 15-yard run by Peacock to the two-yard line.

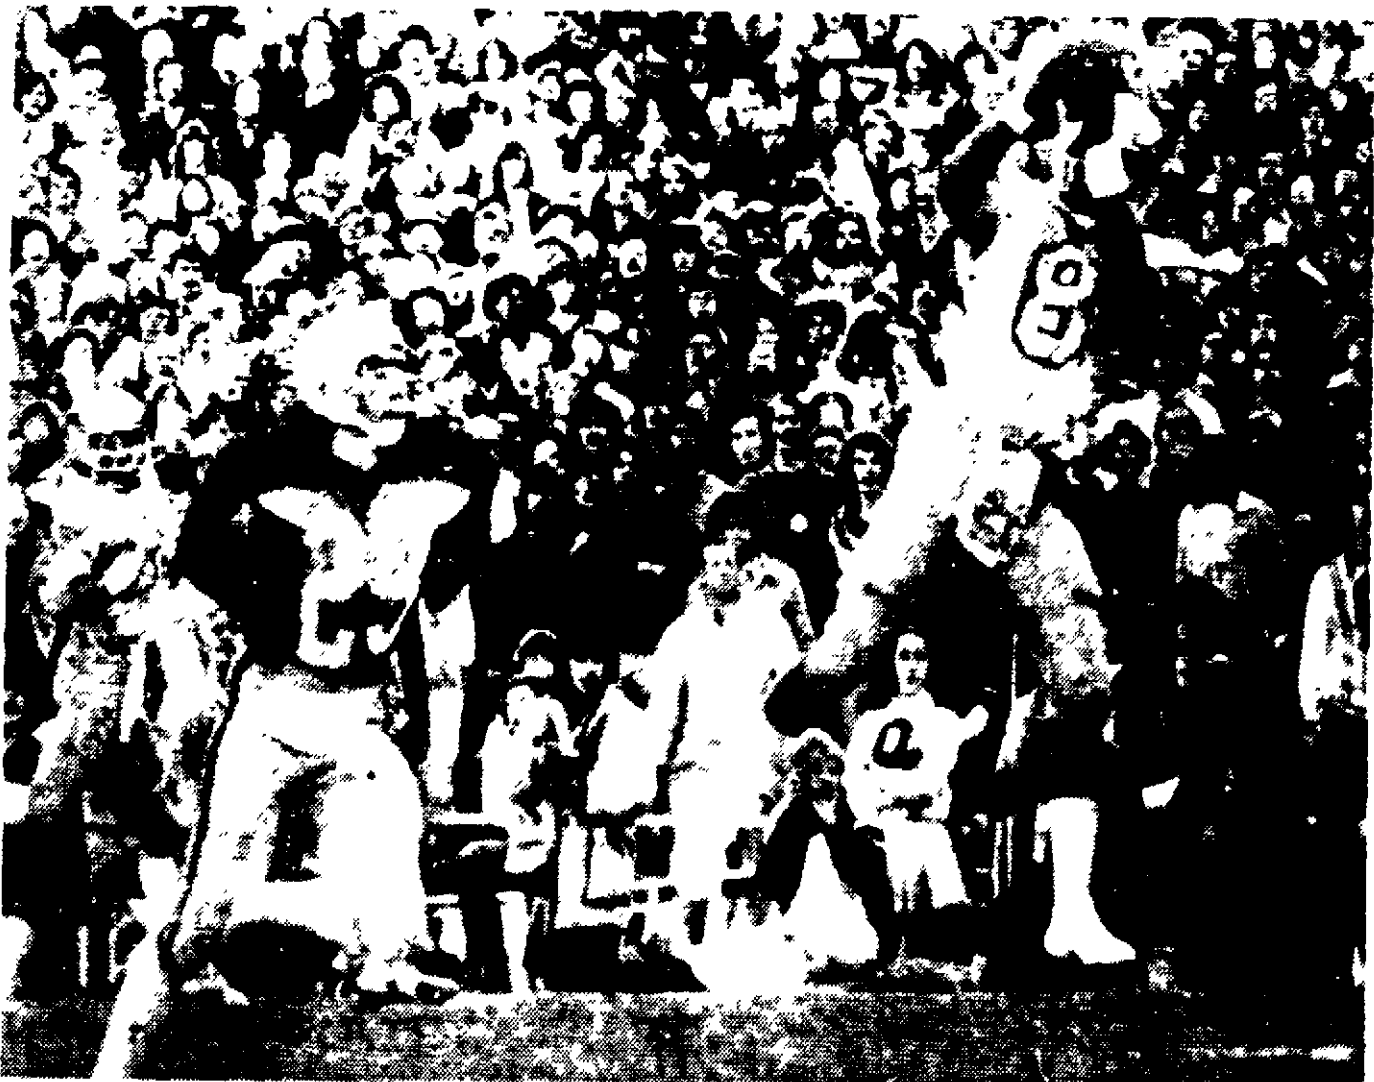

Davis kept for gains of 8, 12 and 16 yards and Culbreath burst through for 21 yards and a key first down at the nine from a third-and-20 hole. After Culbreath lost a yard, Davis skurled left end for the touchdown.

After its gift touchdown, Michigan had the football two more times, once at its own 20 and once at its seven. The first time the Wolverines gained five yards on three plays and punted.

Their last attempt came with 1:30 remaining. With Leach hitting Bell on a screen pass for 16 yards and Keith Johnson for 16 more for Michigan's only two completions of the night in 26 attempts, the Wolverines advanced to their 49.

But on the game's last play, safety Scott Hill, who intercepted Michigan's first pass on the game's fourth play, picked off a desperation bomb by Leach at the Oklahoma 16.

Kansans Topple Wesleyan

Wichita, Kan. — Superior shooting and rebounding carried Kansas Newman's basketball team to an easy 109-82 victory here Thursday night over Nebraska Wesleyan.

The game completed the opening-round action of the Friends University Invitational Tournament at the Friends' gymnasium.

Other Thursday scores included Marymount defeating Panhandle State, 88-67; Emporia State downing Southwestern 91-66; and host Friends topping Ottawa, 75-58.

Coach Irv Peterson's Plainsmen will meet Ottawa in a consolation bracket game at 4 p.m. Friday. If Wesleyan wins, it will compete for fifth place at 4 p.m. on Saturday.

The Plainsmen, who dropped their seventh game in eight outings, trailed early at 14-4 with 15:42 left before intermission.

NWU's 6-9 junior Blake Butler was assessed three personal fouls within the first four minutes to hamper his rebounding effectiveness.

Then senior Bob Knollenberg and junior Angelo Lilly started hitting and Wesleyan pulled within 25-24 with 9:55 remaining before halftime.

But the Wichita school then drew away to a 62-39 halftime lead and all but sealed their sixth victory in 11 attempts.

The Kansans outscored NWU, 47-43 in the second half and won on fine field goal shooting. They hit 47 of 78 field goal attempts for 60 per cent.

NWU, which hit just 47 per cent in the first half, finished with a 41 percentage on 36 of 86 completions.

The Plainsmen were paced by Lilly and Mark Simmerman, who each hit 13 points, and 12 points each from Larry Abel, Knollenberg and Kim Veerhusen.

The Jets, coached by David Skinner, were led by Richard Grant, who took game-high scoring honors with 24 points; Mike Marshall with 22 points, 14 from Charles McClain and 10 each from Ted Bayer and Jeff Campbell.

The Kansans, held a commanding 55-29 rebounding edge as McClain took game honors with 20 caroms. He achieved 14 of his retrieves in the opening half.

Each team committed 15 personal fouls.

Crown Of Roses Fits UCLA's Sciarra

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — "John Sciarra brought us to the Rose Bowl and he's the man who brought us through it to victory," UCLA's deliriously happy Dick Vermeil said.

"He's a great football player. I'll be damned if there are seven better college players in the country as the Hesman Trophy voting indicated."

Vermeil, the former Los Angeles Rams assistant, spoke Thursday night minutes after his greatest coaching triumph, a 23-10 UCLA victory over heavily favored and No. 1 ranked Ohio State in the Rose Bowl.

Sciarra fired two touchdown strikes to Wally Henry in the third quarter and Wendell Tyler streaked 54 yards for a third score in the fourth period.

"We didn't have any pep talks at half time," Vermeil continued. "We knew that we were fortunate to be trailing only 3-0 after our weak offensive performance in the first half."

"But the players also knew that we could win the ball game. We spent the whole intermission making technical adjustments."

Bombastic Woody Hayes, the Ohio State coach, was ungracious in defeat. He refused to show up at the Rose Bowl interview room and ordered his players and his assistant coaches not to talk to reporters.

Avengeing a 41-20 defeat administered by Ohio State at the Los Angeles Coliseum Oct. 4, the Bruins, two-touchdown underdogs at game time, cost the Buckeyes their first national championship since 1968.

A Sports Roundup

FOOTBALL

Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., has requested an investigation of the National Football League's antitrust exemption, which was used to prohibit Memphis of the defunct World Football League from being admitted into the senior league. Baker said he would introduce a resolution calling for the investigation when Congress reconvenes Jan. 9.

Dallas Cowboys' Coach Tom Landry, who is one win away from entering the Super Bowl, was named Thursday as the National Football Conference's Coach of the Year by United Press International. Landry received 12 of 39 votes, with Detroit's Rick Forzano getting 10 votes and both Minnesota's Bud Grant and Don Coryell of St. Louis receiving eight votes apiece.

OTHER SPORTS

Two Ohio racetracks, Thisledown and Northfield Park, were closed Thursday by a labor dispute. The mutual clerks of both tracks rejected a new contract to replace the one that expired at midnight Wednesday.

Ken Rosewall and Mark Edmondson advanced to the semifinals of the Australian Open tennis championships Thursday. The two Australians will join the winners of the John Newcombe-Ross Case and Tony Roche-Ray Ruffels matches in Saturday's semifinals.

Atlanta Braves righthander Buzz Capra, who dropped to a 4-7 record after winning 16 of 24 games in 1974, was reported in fair condition Thursday after undergoing surgery to correct a misplaced tendon in his right shoulder.

Capra's boss no longer may be the Atlanta-LaSalle Corporation, the Atlanta Journal-Constitution reported Thursday. Ted Turner, 37, who owns an advertising business and television stations in Atlanta and Charlotte, N.C., is reported to be on the verge of finalizing purchase of the Braves.

Rookie center Don Ashby has been sent to Oklahoma City of the Central Hockey League by parent club Toronto Maple Leafs. The move allows Toronto to keep center Jack Valiquette, who had been called up to replace injured winger Inge Hammarstrom.

Ron Buchanan, center for the Indianapolis Racers of the World Hockey Association, announced his retirement Thursday. Buchanan, 31, blamed a recurring knee injury for ending his nearly five years of WHA play.

Switzer Hoping For Top Spot

MIAMI (UPI) — Barry Switzer knew the question would come up eventually.

"Do you think your team is number one?" the Oklahoma coach was asked after his team's 14-6 victory over Michigan in the Orange Bowl.

"I knew you guys were gonna ask me that question sooner or later," Switzer quipped to a roomful of reporters. "I'd like to say we are, but I don't know how the polls are going to come out. There are some great football teams across the country but I think we've played some very big games this season."

"I'd like to think we're number one."

"We were aware of the Rose Bowl score (UCLA 23 Ohio State 10) and that inspired us."

Three of the biggest wins in the Sooners' 11-1 season came after their lone loss, 23-3, to Kansas. They responded with a 28-27 win over Missouri, a 35-10 romp over Nebraska and Thursday night's Orange Bowl victory over fourth-ranked Michigan.

"The first thing I want to say is to congratulate this team on their fine recovery after the Kansas ball game," said Switzer. "We've played three very fine teams since then and the team did the job in all three."

Oklahoma quarterback Steve Davis said the Sooners knew of UCLA's upset of Ohio State before the Orange Bowl kickoff and said "that gave us more incentive."

"This was the Super Bowl for us," said Davis. "We knew we had to perform well and it made me more tense."

And who's number one?

"I think this team deserves it," said Davis.

Sooner defensive tackle Leroy Selmon said the Ohio State loss "made this game more intense for us," but added he had a feeling Oklahoma would be playing for the national championship.

"I had a chance to talk to (UCLA quarterback John Sciarra) and he sounded pretty optimistic despite what happened the last time (Ohio State beat UCLA during the regular season)," Selmon said.

"He said they were going to go all out and we're happy with the results."

The Sooners won the Orange Bowl with their rock-hard defense, anchored by Selmon, his brother Dewey, and Jimbo Elrod. The Wolverines' only touchdown followed a Sooners fumble on their own 2.

"We had a tough time with them on the third series (Michigan drove to the Oklahoma 33 before punting)," said Selmon. "Then we began to see what they were doing and made them pass."

The Sooners first touchdown was a 39-yard end-around by reserve split end Billy Brooks.

"We knew we could run it," said Brooks. "We just didn't know when."

Golf Lead To Stockton

MONTEREY, Calif. (AP) — Closing with an eagle two, former PGA champion Dave Stockton fired a five-under-par 66 Thursday to take a one-stroke lead after the first round of the $65,000 Lynx Invitational Pro-Am golf championship.

Stockton sank a two-iron on his final shot of the day to eagle the up-hill 420-yard ninth hole of the par-71 Laguna Seca Golf Ranch.

The eagle left him a stroke ahead of Bob Risch of Diamond Bar, Calif., who had a five-under 67 on the Corral de Tierra Country Club course, one of three being used for the initial pro tournament of 1976.

Heading a group at 69 was Bob Zender, and in a group tied at 70 was touring pro Jim Wiechers.

Bullets Topple Phoenix

Landover, Md. (UPI) — Len Robinson came off the bench to score 21 points, tying his career high, Tuesday night to lead the Washington Bullets to a 114-103 National Basketball Association victory over the Phoenix Suns.

Seven of the eight Washington players who played scored in double figures, including 18 apiece by Elvin Hayes and Wes Unseld. Phil Chenier added 16 points for the Bullets, while Mike Riordan had 15.

Paul Westphal led Phoenix with 25 points, while Dick Van Arsdale had 21. Curtis Perry and Alvin Adams scored 16 each.

Robinson scored 11 of his points in the second period to help Washington overcome a four point first period deficit. The Bullets outscored Phoenix 22-14 in the period to take a 49-43 halftime lead, and the Suns never came close in the second half.

The Bullets' second consecutive victory increased their record to 17-15. Phoenix, which has now lost four consecutive games and six of its last seven, dropped to 16-14.

Griffin Granted Another Honor

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Archie Griffin, the all-American running back from Ohio State, was named Friday as the Philadelphia Sports Writer Association's Amateur Athlete of the Year.

The two-time Heisman trophy winner will be honored Jan. 12 at the Association's 72nd annual banquet along with Cincinnati Reds' star Pete Rose, the PSWA's professional athlete of the year.

Griffin, 5-foot-9, 182 pounds, averaged 5.5 yards per carry this season.

Buckeye coach Woody Hayes, who opened 1976 with a 21-gun defeat, tries to play peacemaker during the first half of Thursday's Rose Bowl when a small argument started between Ohio State's Cornelius Greene and UCLA's Pete Pile.

Bruin Ways Faze Hayes

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Woody Hayes kept newsmen waiting 45 minutes before disappearing on a team bus Thursday, granting no interviews after his top-ranked Ohio State squad's crushing Rose Bowl defeat by UCLA.

The only post-game quote from the tempestuous Buckeye football coach came from his rival mentor, UCLA's Dick Vermeil.

After the Bruins had thumped Ohio State 23-10, ruining the Buckeye bid for an unbeaten season and a certain national championship, Vermeil said of Hayes: "He came across the field with eight seconds left, congratulated me and said, 'They fouled up' or something like that."

Wayne Duke, the Big Ten conference commissioner, went into the locked Ohio State dressing room and later told an aide that Hayes was "very distraught."

'Gambling' Jury Awaits Hearing

MIAMI (UPI) — A statewide grand jury investigating illegal gambling in the state is expected to hear testimony in Orlando this month about an alleged $1 million a day illicit bookmaking operation at Calder Race Course.

Alachua County State Attorney Eugene Whitworth, adviser to the statewide grand jury, said 35 subpoenas were served in the Calder investigation. The grand jury is to meet in Orlando Jan. 19-21.

Twenty-five agents of the Florida Department of Criminal Law Enforcement served subpoenas at the race track Dec. 19. The action was not announced, but became known when Calder President Elmer Vickers protested the manner in which the subpoenas were served in a letter to state Supreme Court Clerk Sid White.

He said agents photographed the people on which subpoenas were served, and a television crew was present at the time the subpoenas were served.

"This is unwarranted harassment and done for the sake of publicity," charged Vickers.

Investigators told the Miami News the investigation began two years ago when an informant said illegal betting at Calder totaled more than the track's $1 million a day in parimutuel receipts.

Bengals' Brown Quits As Coach

Cincinnati (UPI) — Paul Brown, who has coached more football victories than anyone else in history, resigned Thursday night as head coach of the Cincinnati Bengals.

Brown, 67, bowed out with a 351-134-16 record after 41 seasons as a football coach from high school to the pros.

Brown said he would continue as general manager of the Bengals, an expansion team he formed eight years ago. He also is a major stockholder in the club.

Brown appointed Bill Johnson, an assistant coach with the Bengals the last eight years, to be the new head coach.

The veteran mentor also announced he had hired Mike McCormack, who was recently fired as head coach of the Philadelphia Eagles, to replace Johnson as the Bengals' offensive line coach.

Brown coached Cincinnati to its finest season ever this year, 11-3, and lost to the Oakland Raiders in last Sunday's AFC playoff game.

The announcement of Brown's resignation came as a surprise because, despite his age, Brown remains in excellent health.

Brown has been one of football's greatest innovators. He was the first to employ assistant coaches on a year around basis and led to the scientific approach to football as it is now played.

The graduate of Massillon (Ohio) High School and Miami University in Ohio coached at Massillon High and in the 1940s was head coach at Ohio State University before taking over the Great Lakes Naval Station team during World War II.

He coached the Cleveland Browns throughout the 1950s and helped develop such stars as Otto Graham and Jimmy Brown.

Bitterly disappointed at being fired as the Browns head coach after the 1962 season, Brown left football for several years but returned to form the Bengals in 1968.

Although Brown did not cite any specific reason for his resignation, he earlier had said he would step down as head coach when he felt he had helped the expansion Bengals become competitive.

The low keyed and unassuming Brown did not make a personal appearance Thursday night to announce his resignation. Instead, he telephoned the team publicity director, Al Heim, and let him contact sports reporters.

"This took me by surprise," said the astonished Heim. "He told me to put out the word, wished me 'Happy New Year' and wished to remain out of reach."

Johnson, 49, who played and later coached with the San Francisco 49ers before joining Brown's staff here in 1968, said he was pleased with his appointment.

"I am honored that Paul Brown would select me as his successor," Johnson said. "I'm completely in agreement with the program here. This is a rare opportunity and I will do my very best."

McCormack also was pleased to have found another position in pro football so soon after the Eagles fired him last month.

Hand Injury Hurts Griffin

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Heisman Trophy winner Archie Griffin of Ohio State suffered a fractured bone in his left hand during the Buckeyes' 23-10 Rose Bowl loss Thursday to UCLA.

A team physician said Griffin would be sidelined for four to five weeks, which will cost him an appearance in the Hula Bowl in Honolulu Jan. 10.

"It happened on the third play of the game," said Griffin, who gained 93 yards in the loss. "I was going for the ball and somebody hit my hand."

The senior tailback recovered an errant pichout from quarterback Cornelius Greene on the play.

Craig Cassidy, son of 1954 Heisman winner Howard "Hopalong" Cassidy and a starting defensive back for the Buckeyes, suffered a broken left collarbone in the game.

The injury will keep Cassidy from playing in the American Bowl, another all-star contest, at Tampa, Fla. later this month.

Arkansas Win A Treat

DALLAS (UPI) — Without a calendar handy it would have been easy to mistake New Year's Day for Halloween at the Cotton Bowl Thursday.

It was the Georgia Bulldogs who tried to trick Arkansas. But the treat went to the Razorbacks — a 31-10 triumph over the Bulldogs, Arkansas' first bowl win in seven years.

Holding a comfortable 10-point lead late in the first half, Georgia committed two costly turnovers — one of them coming on a trick play — and Arkansas, despite being outplayed through almost all of the front two quarters, escaped with a 10-10 deadlock at intermission.

Arkansas used the momentum they had seized at the end of the half to bore away relentlessly until Georgia finally collapsed, resulting in a 21-point Razorback fourth quarter. Georgia could manage only two first downs and 60 total yards in the second half.

The Razorbacks broke through in the second half on a 35-yard throw from quarterback Scott Bull to Freddie Douglas that set up the go-ahead touchdown with 11 minutes left in the game.

"The way Georgia took it to us in the first half I would not have been surprised if everyone had given up on us," said Arkansas coach Frank Broyles.

"That's the finest second half we've played against a good team in a long time. I thought the key play was the pass we hit to Freddie and because we played the second half mostly on their end of the field we were able to play with recklessness."

Georgia players were chiefly distressed at the failure of their trick play, which, if it had worked, would have given the Bulldogs a 17-3 halftime advantage.

"But Arkansas was not fooled and got on the play too quickly for it to develop," said Georgia quarterback Ray Goff. "That play definitely hurt our momentum."

With the momentum of the game changed, Arkansas threatened throughout the second half to break it open. But the Razorbacks missed three field goals and could not score until 11 minutes were left in the game.

Bull's 35-yard toss to Douglas — the only long pass completed by either side all day — moved Arkansas to the Georgia 12 and three plays later Rolland Fuchs scored what proved to be the winning touchdown on a five-yard run.

Arkansas extended its winning margin later in the final quarter on a one-yard scoring run by Michael Forrest, set up by an interception in Bulldog territory by cornerback Howard Simpson, and a five-yard run by the game's leading ground gainer, Ike Forte.

Georgia moved in front on a 35-yard field goal by Alan Leavitt and a 21-yard scoring toss from backup quarterback Matt Robinson to flanker Gene Washington. But then things turned sour for the Bulldogs. Robinson fumbled at his own 15 with five minutes to play in the half, but Arkansas had to settle for a 39-yard field goal from Steve Little.

Following the kickoff, with time running out, Georgia tried a trick play that had worked earlier this season for a touchdown against Vanderbilt.

After officials had marked the ball ready for play, quarterback Ray Goff walked casually toward the ball and suddenly scooped it backwards to Washington, who was standing behind a wall of Bulldog blockers.

Arkansas was not fooled, however, and Washington was hit the second he caught the ball, resulting in a fumble recovered by the Razorbacks' Hal McAfee at the Georgia 13.

Forte scored two plays later from the one with 50 seconds to play in the half.

The victory by the 10th-ranked Razorbacks was their first in a bowl game in seven years, their last post season triumph also coming over the Bulldogs in the 1969 Sugar Bowl. It left Arkansas with a 10-2 season record while the 11th-ranked Bulldogs finished at 9-3.

It was also the seventh consecutive year that the team which scored first had lost in a Cotton Bowl game.

Georgia appeared almost unstoppable on their first few series, and missed one touchdown when freshman flanker James Moreen juggled a long pass from Robinson and finally dropped it on the goal line.

But despite such misfortune Georgia still appeared to have total control of the game until the two costly turnovers at the end of the second quarter.

Arkansas asserted control to start the second half and was helped along by a succession of fortunate bounces of the ball.

Three times in the third quarter Arkansas fumbled only to retain possession — two of those recoveries bringing loud protests from the Bulldog bench which thought the officials had erred in awarding the ball to the Razorbacks.

The game-turning play occurred two minutes deep into the fourth quarter. On first down at the Georgia 47, following a poor Bulldog punt, Bull hit Douglas cutting across the middle of the field and the 5-10 senior sprinted to the Georgia 12. Although Bull and both Georgia quarterbacks periodically tried to go deep, Douglas' reception was the only one of the day for either squad that went for a sizeable gain.

Forte, who gained 119 yards on 24 carries after missing the final two regular season games with dislocated toes, was voted the game's most valuable offensive player. McAfee, who recovered two fumbles and intercepted one pass, was voted the leading defensive player of the contest.

Steelers Analyze Raiders

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — About this time last year, the Oakland Raiders were full of confident talk about how they'd handle Pittsburgh. This year they can't sing the Steelers' praises loud enough.

"That's a psyche job," said Steeler defensive end Dwight White. "We're not going to fall for that."

And neither, he added, are the Steelers going to try any psychology of their own before they meet the Raiders Sunday in the AFC championship game.

"That doesn't do anything," he said. "That'll backfire on you. You win football games by running, blocking, tackling."

And that's what the Steelers are concentrating on doing. "We know Oakland pretty well," White said. This is the fourth straight year the Steelers and the Raiders have met in the playoffs. The first year the Steelers won on a freaky play now known as Franco Harris' "Immaculate Reception."

The next year, the Raiders won, and last year the Steelers breezed through the AFC title game en route to the Super Bowl championship.

The Steeler defenders say they have their work cut out for them.

"They're really a fine team," said veteran linebacker Andy Russell. "They don't finesse, try to fool you. They just try to blow you off the field. I like teams that do that."

The Steeler defense, Russell said, will have to concentrate on stopping the Raiders' ground game.

"They can force the football down your throat, they can power down your throat," he said. "We'll have to force them to pass the football under our terms."

The Steeler offense, meanwhile, was breathing a little easier.

Quarterback Terry Bradshaw pronounced himself in great shape after badly bruising his knee after he was tackled and propelled through the air by a Baltimore Colt a week ago.

"I can throw all right," he said. His running, he said with a grin, is "just slow as ever."

Bradshaw says the offense will "do whatever works," but it's likely to be the usual mixture of runs and passes. "It's gonna be a great game," Bradshaw said. "You've got the two best teams playing. You'll have a lot of hitting. The team that can control the ball ... is gonna win."

Greene's Backup Has Fire In His Furness

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Chances are "real strong" Mean Joe will be ready to go. If he isn't, the Pittsburgh Steelers will rely on "a guy who could start for just about any other team."

That's the report from defensive line Coach George Perles of the Steelers as they await Sunday's clash here with the Oakland Raiders for the American Football Conference title.

Tackle Joe Greene, soul of the Pittsburgh defense, has been sidelined since midseason with a neck injury and a pulled groin muscle.

"There's a real strong possibility he might be ready this week, and we know that if we're fortunate enough to win, we will definitely have him in good shape for the Super Bowl," Perles said after a practice session Wednesday.

"If we do get him ready this week and he is healthy, there's no telling what kind of game he could play because he has a lot of feeling inside him," added the 41-year-old Perles, a glib former Michigan State tackle.

"It hurts him not to play, and he wants to play as much as anybody in the world."

Perles said that if Greene does return, he will likely alternate with fourth-year pro Steve Furness, a bearded, 255-pounder, who was a world class hammer thrower at Rhode Island University.

Furness, drafted in the fifth round in 1972, has played so well as Greene's replacement, along with subbing at the other three line positions, that Perles now speaks of the Pittsburgh "Front Five."

"We knew Steve was an excellent football player, but in all honesty, he has played better than we thought he could play," said Perles.

"He went in with the idea that he wasn't only replacing a starter, he was replacing one of the greatest defensive linemen that ever played the game."

"And he's done a job that's capable of being recognized as All-Pro. He's got to be the finest backup defensive linemen in the league, and there's no question he's a guy who could start for just about any other team in pro football."

The Pittsburgh defensive line, which helped the Steelers dominate the playoffs a year ago, has been smitten with assorted injuries this season.

Rams' Simpson Juiced, Too

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The ball carrier appears to be stopped by two Los Angeles Ram tacklers at the right side-line, but in the middle of the field Bill Simpson is sprinting like a madman toward the downed runner.

A split second later, the ball pops loose from the runner's grasp and Simpson pounces on the ball.

It's a scene that's been enacted a handful of times this season and although Simpson swears he doesn't know in advance there will be a fumble or pass interception, "the play is never over until they're walking back to the huddle."

Simpson, a puckish sort of safety in the once-maligned secondary of the Rams who take on Dallas for the National Football Conference title Sunday, has intercepted six passes in this, his second year with the club. He also has made enough tackles to make a linebacker wince.

"No, it's not by design that I'm running all over the place," he said. "But there are so many good people out there you never know when a man is down. Besides, most people think of the safety as the last line of defense — a guy who stands back there in center field and waits to intercept passes and make an occasional tackle.

"Well, I was a quarterback until my sophomore year at Michigan State and I like feel in control of the game, even now. I think too many safeties in football lose contact with the game if they wait for it to come to them."

"I just like to get ahead of that ball. It's a natural instinct, I guess."

Simpson's latest heroics included an interception of a Jim Hart pass and a 65-yard return for a touchdown last Saturday as the Rams beat the St. Louis Cardinals 35-23 in the NFC semifinal. Simpson's runback gave Los Angeles an early 14-0 lead.

"That was my biggest thrill as a Ram," said the man they call Huckelberry because of his resemblance to the Mark Twain character. "It was the highlight of my career because it came against a team which scores a lot of points and we needed all we could get."

Simpson was asked which position he would play if given a choice of any on the field. "No question — quarterback," he said. "I like the idea of having the option of calling the plays, controlling the game."

Asked if he is then a No. 3 or No. 4 reserve quarterback for the Rams, Simpson said, "No, that's just a Walter Mitty dream of mine. I think after (James) Harris, (Ron) Jaworski and maybe Rob Scribner the Rams would sooner sign a free agent than let me play quarterback."

Early in the season, Simpson says, the Ram defensive backfield was considered the weak link in an otherwise strong defensive unit. "We were blasted pretty good at times last year," he said. "But the defensive line had so much publicity and the linebackers are so good that maybe we weren't considered that good by comparison."

"But we decided we wanted to get the job done so we tried to eliminate the things we had been doing wrong."

The Rams wound up No. 2 in the National Football League behind Minnesota in total defense.

Playoff Tickets Sold Out At LA

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Rams' National Football Conference championship game against the Dallas Cowboys at the Coliseum Sunday has been sold out and will be televised locally by CBS, it was announced Thursday.

The sellout was completed with the purchase of $35,000 in tickets by the Southern California Ford Dealers Association. Those tickets will be distributed to charitable youth organizations.

Slippery Track Prevents Races

New Orleans (AP) — Three horses slipped and fell on a muddy Fair Grounds course during the first race New Year's Day, forcing cancelation of the remainder of the racing card. There were no injuries from the spills. Among the jockeys pitched into the mud was Eddie Delahoussaye, the track's leading rider. He had ridden four horses to victory on New Year's Eve.

Over 11,000 fans were given refunds and sent home after the spills. Fair Grounds management said it would have the sodden track ready by Friday.

Cotton-Pickin' Trick Backfired

Dallas (AP) — Arkansas ambushed Georgia on an ill-fated trick play Thursday and the happy Hogs agreed that it was the turning point in a 31-10 Cotton Bowl victory.

"That was what broke their backs," said Razorback quarterback Scott Bull.

"That really hurt 'em," added linebacker Hal McAfee.

The play caught just about everybody but Arkansas by surprise and ended with a fumble that the 18th-ranked Porkers converted into a touchdown and a 10-10 tie at halftime.

"The play just didn't work," said Georgia quarterback Ray Goff, who set it in motion by apparently tying his shoe lace and then pitching the ball to flanker Gene Washington. "It was supposed to be a reverse with me going downfield and taking a pass. It was a gamble and we knew they would be ready for it, but it takes big plays to win. Instead, it turned it around for them."

Georgia coach Vince Dooley said the play was designed to go from Goff to Washington to tight end Richard Appleby, who then was supposed to pass downfield to Goff. But Washington never got the ball.

"He (Goff) didn't make a bad pitch. I bobbled it," said Washington. "I saw two guys coming in at me and maybe I took my eyes off the ball."

A similar play, without the pass, had worked for a touchdown in Georgia's victory over Vanderbilt during the regular season. The pass aspect was added because the Bulldogs realized Arkansas would be ready for the trick play.

"They had just scored and we wanted to turn around the momentum," said Dooley, who said it was his decision alone to call the trick play deep in his own territory late in the first half. "As it turned out, it was a poor decision."

Georgia made just one first down after the intermission and Dooley admitted that Arkansas "just dominated play the second half. They got us in a hole and never let us out."

Arkansas coach Frank Broyles said the two Georgia fumbles shortly before the half were indeed the key plays, but he attributed the victory to "fate."

"It was just fate," he said.

"We were supposed to win. Actually our kids just wouldn't lose."

McAfee, who pestered the Bulldog offense all day, collecting a pass interception along with the two fumble recoveries, shared most valuable player honors with teammate Ike Forte.

Forte shredded the Georgia defense for 112 yards and scored two touchdowns.

"This has got to be the best team in the nation," he boasted. "A lot of people thought we were just lucky to be here in the Cotton Bowl, but we showed 'em today that we're a great football team."

Broyles said the biggest job he and his coaches faced this year was "convincing our kids that they could win ... After the second half of the Texas game, I knew we had a team that could win."

After losing to Texas 24-18, the Razorbacks won their remaining five games and upset previously unbeaten Texas A&M in the season finale to win a three-way share of the Southwest Conference title and the host berth in the Cotton Bowl.

"That fumble seemed like a big play at the time, but the way Arkansas played after halftime, maybe it wasn't."

Georgia turned the ball over four times in the game while Arkansas lost the ball only once, despite six fumbles.

"Turnovers in bowl games usually make the difference," said Dooley. "We had some critical ones just before the half and we couldn't get any in the second half when we needed them."

Hospitals In Slowdown Turn Away Patients

Los Angeles (UPI) — A slowdown by doctors protesting soaring malpractice insurance rates became official Thursday and private hospitals began turning away to county facilities accident cases such as broken legs which were not considered emergencies.

The overall effect of the protest and the number of physicians among the 20,000 in the area participating could not be accurately gauged on New Year's Day with offices closed and none but emergency surgeries scheduled.

But a typical case was Brotman Memorial Hospital with 600 beds whose doctors malpractice insurance expired at midnight. Approximately 25 surgeries are performed at Brotman on weekdays, but a spokesman said only emergencies would be handled until the issue is resolved.

A number of private hospitals, particularly in the San Fernando Valley, were referring non-critical cases to county and state facilities and the federally supported Veterans Administration complex.

Persons arriving by ambulance with broken bones and other injuries were examined by a panel of staff physicians. If their condition was not considered an emergency situation, they were "stabilized" and sent to the nearest public facility.

The largest hospital in the area, USC County Medical Center which has more than 2,000 beds, said that so far there had been no marked increase in referrals arriving there.

At Cedars of Lebanon Hospital, a spokesman said conditions were not different from an ordinary New Year's Day. It does not have an emergency ward.

"Babies are being born here just as they always are," the spokesman said. "Nothing can stop that."

New malpractice insurance premiums for southern California doctors will rise to a minimum of 327% and amaximum of 486%, depending on settlement of a suit seeking to overturn a state ruling establishing the lower rate.

An orthopedic surgeon who paid $6,000 for malpractice coverage last year could be paying up to $36,000 for protection this year.

A poll by the Los Angeles Times of 61 general practitioners in the county showed that 46 said their offices would be open Monday, 10 said they would be closed and five were still uncertain.

But when asked if they would accept new patients, 23 said they would, 23 said they would not and five were uncertain.

Meetings between representatives of the protesting doctors and aides of Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. were scheduled to resume Friday and Saturday.

Musical Equipment

Taken From Store

Thieves got away with more than $4,400 worth of musical equipment in an early morning break-in at Thomsen Music Co., 2641 N. 48th, Thursday police said.

Taken in the incident were five guitars, four cymbals and an amplifier.

Police Question

Robbery Suspect

Lincoln Police said Thursday that they have a suspect in custody for questioning concerning the armed robbery of the Big Red Liquor store at 3239 S. 13th Wednesday night. An armed gunman got away with an as of yet undisclosed amount of money in that incident.

Oil Tracts For Leasing May Be Cut

Washington (UPI) — The Interior Department announced Thursday that the government may reduce the size of undersea oil and gas beds up for leasing to oil firms this spring off the New Jersey coast.

At the same time, the department announced that nearly 12 million acres of offshore lands in the Georges Bank Trough off Massachusetts had been tentatively chosen for oil and gas leasing later this year.

A department spokesman said the anticipated reduction was the result of comments by state officials, environmental groups, fishing industry representatives and others opposed to offshore drilling.

The government had pinpointed 76,000 acres of seabed 50 miles off the New Jersey coast from Toms River south to Delaware that would be opened for lease bidding by oil developers next May. The spokesman said it was too early to tell how much of the tract would be withdrawn from bidding.

The department's Bureau of Land Management said 206 tracts off Massachusetts had been selected for "intensive study" for a draft environmental impact statement required under the national environmental policy act.

The BLM said the tracts are from 50 to 200 miles off Nantucket Island.

The agency said the 206 tracts were among 1,927 on which oil companies had said they would bid if offered for sale.

BLM said the tracts were selected after reviewing the recommendations of other federal agencies, state and local governments, and organizations concerned with environmental protection and the use of natural resources.

The department said public hearings would be held on the draft impact statement and that it would then be submitted to the President's Council on Environmental Quality before a final decision is made.

The New England sale tentatively has been scheduled for August.

Smallest Couple To Be Wed As Circus Highlight

Venice, Fla. (UPI) — A highlight of the 1976 edition of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Circus — "The Greatest Show on Earth" — will be a re-enactment of what has been termed the world's smallest wedding.

The circus will start its 106th year at its winter headquarters in Venice with a re-enactment of the 1863 wedding P. T. Barnum arranged between midgets Tom Thumb and Lavinia Warren.

The wedding will be recreated by Michu, who at 39-inches is billed by the circus as the world's smallest man, and his 38-inch fiancée, Juliana. The diminutive couple plans to wed each other for real later this year.

Investments Earned State $23.8 Million

The state investment council's annual report says the agency invested $1.7 billion in state money during fiscal 1975, earning $23.8 million.

The council, created in 1966, doesn't get to keep the money. It must return earnings to the agency from which the money invested originated.

Investments are usually made in U.S. government, municipal and corporate bonds as well as stocks.

During the year, $647,132 was invested in common stocks. Sales netted $3,092,625.

Common stock purchases included Commonwealth Edison, Dow Chemical, Eastman Kodak, Minnesota Mining & Manufacturing, Union Carbide and Xerox. Stocks sold included CBS, J. P. Morgan, Northern Natural Gas, PPG Industries, Ralston Purina, Standard Oil of Indiana, Transamerica Corp., Union Carbide, and F. W. Woolworth.

ADVERTISEMENT FOR BIDS
City of Waverly

Separate sealed bids for the construction of Wastewater Treatment Works and Interceptor Sewer will be received by the City of Waverly, Nebraska at the City Council Chambers at Waverly, Nebraska until 8:00 P.M. Central Standard Time, February 2, 1976, and then at said office publicly opened and read aloud.

The contract documents, consisting of Advertisement for Bids, Proposal, Contract, Performance Bond, General Conditions, Special Provisions, Drawings, Specifications and Addenda, may be examined at the following locations: the office of the City Clerk at Waverly, Nebraska and the office of Hoskins-Western-Sonderger, Inc., Engineers. Copies of the contract documents may be obtained at the office of Hoskins-Western-Sonderger, Inc., located at 825 "D" Street, Lincoln, Nebraska upon payment of $20.00 for each set.

Separate bids will be received for Schedule "I" Wastewater Treatment Works and for Schedule "II" Interceptor Sewer. Each schedule bid shall be accompanied by a certified check or bid bond in the sum of five percent (5%) of the total bid amount, made payable to the order of the City of Waverly, Nebraska, as security for the bidder to whom the contract will be awarded will enter into a contract to build the improvement in accordance with this schedule. The certified check or bid bond shall be enclosed in a separate sealed envelope legibly marked as Schedule "I" or Schedule "II". Cashier checks will not be accepted.

The successful bidder for each schedule will be required to furnish a satisfactory performance bond in an amount not less than one hundred percent (100%) of the Total Base Bid for the schedule bid.

The work under this schedule consists of constructing a new Wastewater Treatment Works including a wet well-dry well lift station, two oxidation ditches, two secondary clarifiers, effluent chlorination facilities, aerobic sludge digester with tank loading station, control building, and all necessary piping, mechanical equipment, controls and electrical work.

Bidders may bid either Schedule "I" or Schedule "II", or both schedules except that no schedule may be tied to the other schedule. The contract for each schedule will be awarded to the low responsive, responsible bidder.

The Engineer's estimate of construction cost is:

Schedule "I" - Wastewater Treatment Works $851,400.00

Schedule "II" - Interceptor Sewer $112,000.00

NOTICE TO BIDDERS
CHEMICAL DEPENDENCY UNIT

One single sealed proposal will be received by the Administrator, Lincoln General Hospital, Lincoln, Nebraska until 2:00 P.M. C.S.T., Thursday, January 15, 1976, for the furnishing of all labor, materials, equipment and services required, including the General, Mechanical and Electrical work to remodel the Lincoln General Hospital School of Nursing facility at 2240 St. Mary's Avenue in Lincoln, Nebraska as per plans and specifications prepared by the Architect-Engineer. Proposals will be received at the Administration Office of Lincoln General Hospital, Lincoln, Nebraska publicly opened and read aloud immediately following closing time. Bids received after the scheduled closing time will be returned unopened.

Each bidder must include with his proposal a statement that the bidder is complying with, and will continue to comply with fair labor standards according to law, in the pursuit of his business and in the execution of the contract on which he is bidding.

All bids shall be made on the printed Proposal Forms to be made part of the Contract Documents.

All bids shall remain in effect for a period of forty-five days after the scheduled closing time for the receipt of bids.

Each bid shall be accompanied by an acceptable Bid Bond or Certified Check payable to the Lincoln General Hospital in the amount of five percent (5%) of the total bid submitted as a guarantee that, if awarded the contract, the bidder will promptly enter into a contract and execute such bonds as may be required. If bid security is not received with the Proposal, the bid will not be considered.

The successful bidder to whom a contract is awarded shall provide a Corporate Surety Performance Bond, Labor and Material Payment Bond, each in an amount equal to 100% of the total amount of the contract.

Lincoln General Hospital reserves the right to reject any or all proposals and to waive any irregularities in any proposal. It is the intent of the Owner to select the most reasonable Proposal on the basis of competitive maximum cost for labor and materials, and the percentage markup of labor and materials for profit.

Include proposal on all alternates and provide the names of the Mechanical and Electrical subcontractors in space provided on the Proposal Form.

A black and white cartoon illustration. On the left, a man in a suit is inside a room, talking on a telephone. He has a large nose and is looking slightly to the right. On the right, a woman with short, curly hair is standing outside, looking at the man with a concerned or questioning expression. She is wearing a dark dress. A horizontal line separates the man's room from the woman's position. The man's dialogue is written in a speech bubble that spans across the line. The cartoon is signed 'TOES' in the bottom right corner.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ BY SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Friday, January 2, 1976

Geminis are restless, curious, bright, capable of doing more than one thing at a time, loving more than one person at a time, ready to read, write, report, research, take notes, and do anything valuable possible. Gemini is the sign on the Ascendant of the U.S. horoscope — that one that adorns the Adams family crest as the U.S. Rising sign, while still others vote for Sagittarius. I go along with the late great John Deere and believe the sign of the GEMINUS is favorable.

ARIES March 21-April 19: Finish what you start—cut through red tape. Make decisions without delay. Be aggressive in your original ideas. Join forces with those who are willing to move ahead. You may have to take a back seat or side State position in positive manner.

Taurus April 20-May 20: Study hard. Don't let distractions get in the way. Lines of communication move dilemma will be resolved. One close to you is being betrayed. Lead was wrong logic. Give up. Quality work can obtain without paying exorbitant price.

GEMINI May 21-June 20: You can do it! Don't let the acid Aquarius know your appreciation for favor could show ways to make more profitable deals. Don't let the sun melt your price-hike progress. High light success. Solidify business property appraisal.

CANCER June 21-July 20: Beware! Don't let your pet sit in the concerned Geminian picture. Make Natives Doms. Stop stepping back taking no notice. Don't let the sun melt your price-hike progress. High light success. Solidify business property appraisal.

LION July 21-August 19: Individuals could figure prominently. You can't afford creative talent for product patent. Key is willingness to invest in your own capabilities.

VIRGO August 20-September 18: Add recognition indicated — circumstances swing in your favor. Timing improves; you receive credit for past efforts—and future plans. The picture shows Lira could be in picture. Emphasize appearance personality — be a self-starter.

AQUARIUS Jan (Feb 18) Light reduces obscurity — means area for growth. Don't let the sun melt your price-hike progress. High light success. Solidify business property appraisal.

PISCES February 19-March 20: Much that appears now to Aquarius could also be important personally. A shorter period will come. The picture shows Lira could be in picture. Emphasize appearance personality — be a self-starter.

IF JAN 2 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are sent here to create good mood level to help you achieve your goals. In the next few days, January 7th through 10th, the planet Saturn will be in the house of your birth sign.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SIDNEY OMARR

Friday, January 2, 1976

Gemini is restless, curious, bright, capable of doing more than one thing at a time, ready to read, write, report, photograph, take notes, turn ideas into viable concepts. Gemini is the sign on the Ascendant of the U.S. horoscope - that according to Evangeline Adams. Other astrological authorities claim Libra as the U.S. Rising sign, while still others vote for Sagittarius. I go along with the late, great Miss Adams - I believe the nation has a Gemini Ascendant.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Finish what you start - cut through red tape. Make contact with individual who is aggressive, has original ideas. Join forces with those who are willing to move forward. Element of timing is on your side. State position in positive manner. TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Study Aries message for valid hint. If you open lines of communication, money dilemma will be resolved. One close to you is being extravagant. Lead way toward logic - show that quality can be obtained without paying exorbitant price. GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You can learn by sharing knowledge. Aquarian, in showing appreciation for favor, could show way to quicker, more profitable achievement. Be receptive. Don't permit pride to block progress. Highlight security, solidly, accurate property appraisal. CANCER (June 21-July 22): Lie low where fine points, details are concerned. Grasp overall picture. Make inquiries. Do more listening than talking - show that you are willing to learn and to apply lessons. Gemini, Sagittarius could be involved. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Pieces fall into place. Lost article is recovered. Former associate "gets in touch." Be gracious, but discreet. Someone wants something for nothing - and flattery could be a weapon. Protect self in clinches! VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Give full play to intellectual curiosity. Means ask questions - find the "why" of events. Involvement is stressed. If you're playing games and emotions, you could be in for a surprise. Know it and be above board.

Here a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
